Ohio Assembly passes ethics, wage bills; adjourns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 110th Ohio General Assembly ground out passage of major bills on minimum wage, unemployment compensation, and code of ethics for public officials, then adjourned late Tuesday night until Jan. 2, 1974.

Final roll calls just before midnight ended an eight-month session of the lawmakers—the first of two regular sessions in the state's current 1973-1975 biennium. Skeleton sessions will be held Sept. 11 for bill signings and other bookkeeping business.

The major highlights of the final day included acceptance by the Senate and House of a joint conference committee report providing for a code of ethics for lawmakers, state and local officials, and judges throughout the state.

Its main feature, as advocated by Gov. John J. Gilligan, requires all but local lower eschelon officials throughout the state to file annual reports listing the sources of their incomes. Various ethics commissions established by the measure could take disciplinary actions in cases of conflicts of interest, including removal from office.

The House vote on the conference committee report was 88-1 with Rep. Ray Luther, R-1 Newark—who claimed the bill was not strong enough—casting the only dissenting vote. The Senate vote was 27-4.

Gilligan, who termed the code of ethics bill his top legislative priority, was quoted as saying he will sign the bill into law. Some backers said it will give Ohio the toughest conflict of interest law in the nation.

The Senate amended and added its approval and the House concurred in the changes in a House bill setting an Ohio minimum wage law of $1.60 an hour for most jobs and $1.30 for agricultural work. The present law provides minimums as low as 55 cents for waitresses and others ranging up to a top of $1.25.

Both houses accepted a conference committee report that completed passage of another administration bill hiking unemployment compensation benefits and easing them on fluctuations in the statewide average weekly wage.

In other action, the legislature passed and sent to the governor a bill providing that members of the new State Lottery Commission be paid a salary of $5,000 a year. An earlier bill creating the commission provided that members would be reimbursed only for actual expenses.

Another measure that would have inserted into an earlier pay raise bill a salary hike for the assistant majority floor leader of the House also died in the Rules Committee. The previous bill raising the pay of legislators and other leaders of the House and Senate omitted the assistant majority leader.

Chairman Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, of the House Judiciary Committee said the bill was allowed to die after he learned some Republicans would attempt to delete all lawmakers from the bill if it made another appearance on the floor.

The bill that raised the pay of senators and House members from $14,000 to $17,500 a year passed by only a few votes and Wilkowski indicated he did not want to see the entire issued reopened.

Earlier, the legislature completed passage of bills to:

—Exempt an estimated 4,000 Ohio real estate salesmen licensed between Oct. 12, 1971, and Jan. 2, 1972, from a newly enacted requirement for 60 hours of educational training, including testing.

—Outlaw discrimination in employment on the basis of sex, with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission given enforcement powers.

—Provide an increase of $2 to $10 a month in the pensions of about 25,000 retired public employes who left active service between June 30, 1968 and July 1, 1972.

—Make a correction in the two-year appropriations bill that would have cost the University of Cincinnati about $800,000 a year by requiring it to reduce previously established student fees.

—Equalize the pay of public officials by allowing them to receive salary increases voted during their terms of office. This proposal would go before voters in May 1974 in the form of a constitutional amendment.

—Authorize payroll deductions for consenting professional school employes as donations to political parties of their choice.

—Rescind the authority of juvenile courts to commit 16 and 17-year-olds to adult correctional institutions.

—Allows public employes to accumulate vacation time for a period of three years instead of the present two years.

—Prohibits legal proceedings to recover pay raises given to municipal judges after they were held not to be covered by a constitutional amendment permitting other judges to receive in-term salary hikes.

—Establishes a hemophilia program in the Ohio Department of Health.

At the last minute, the Senate rejected a conference committee report on a bill to pay sundry claims against the state which cannot be sued. Sponsors said the measure would have to be reintroduced at the 1974 session. The bill contains claims totaling about $600,000.

Rains hamper hunt for quake survivors

Mexican toll passes 600

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Torrential rains drenched rescue workers in some parts of southeast Mexico today as they searched for bodies or trapped survivors from the worst earthquake in modern Mexican history.

The rains added to an already serious flood problem and drove more people from their homes.

Late figures from the quake areas 120 to 220 miles south and east of Mexico City indicated more than 600 persons perished in the devastating earth shock at 3:51 a.m. Tuesday.

It was the highest death toll of an earthquake in Mexico since the keeping of such records started in the early 1900s.

President Luis Echeverria scheduled a bus tour of the devastated area today.

The quake, coming during the worst rainy season in 30 years, extended a disaster area that already covered much of central Mexico. Seventy-six persons have died in floods in the past month, the homes of more than 400,000 have been damaged and millions of dollars worth of crops have been ruined.

The earthquake, which registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, struck at least 24 cities, towns and villages along the Sierra Madre range in the states of Puebla and Veracruz.

In Richter measurements, an earthquake of 7.0 is 10 times more severe than one of 6.0, which is 10 times greater than one of 5.0. That is because the Richter scale measures wave magnitudes and not something like an increase in automobile speed from 60 to 70 miles per hour.

Huge cracks opened in the earth in Puebla state, into which homes and other buildings tumbled. The craters spouted dust for hours, until afternoon rains damped it.

Ciudad Serdan, 170 miles east of Mexico City, appeared to be in the center of the area hit hardest. The police duty officer in the city reported early today that between 300 and 400 persons were dead in the city of 22,000 people and its adjacent villages.

In Orizaba, a center of the brewing industry, 80 deaths were reported, most of them in the collapse of a five-story building in which 20 families lived.

Twenty-four hours after the quake the exact toll was not known because many small villages along the edge of the extinct Pico de Orizaba volcano were still isolated.

The government reported 393 confirmed dead in the state of Puebla and 92 in Veracruz state. But later reports from both areas added another 17 deaths.

The worst previous earthquake in modern Mexico occurred July 28, 1957, when about 70 people were killed, more than 50 of them in Mexico City. This time the capital was not seriously affected.

There were no reports of foreigners being injured and Acapulco, the tourist resort on the Pacific coast, barely felt the tremor.

EXPRESSWAY PILEUP — Two tractor trailer rigs and two smaller trucks were involved in a pileup on I-255 near Memphis, Tenn., leaving one dead and at least four others injured. Removal of debris took hours and left thousands of cars backed up in mammoth traffic jam. (AP Wirephoto)

Ohio ethics law strongest in U.S.?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Approval by Gov. John J. Gilligan of a newly-approved code of ethics bill will give Ohio the finest legislation of its kind in the nation, a veteran state lawmaker says.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, gave that evaluation Tuesday night after the House and Senate approved a joint conference committee report and sent the bill to the governor.

Fry, although a minority member of the House, helped corral GOP votes for the Democratic measure which requires public officials throughout the state—from the statehouse to county courthouses and city halls—to make annual reports on their sources of income.

Failure to do so could lead to their removal from office.

Gilligan, who already requires financial disclosure by employes of the executive department, is reported ready to sign the measure although it is considerably weaker than the bill he submitted to the lawmakers eight months ago. He called it his "No. 1 legislative priority."

Gilligan requires his cabinet members and others in the executive department to disclose not only the sources of income, but also the amounts of their incomes. Gilligan makes his disclosures annually.

Fry, a four-term member of the House and also a former state senator, fought for about seven years to get the legislature to go along with a bill he said was needed to restore and preserve public confidence in their elected officials.

As some Democratic members complained the bill was too weak, Fry pointed out its provisions go much further than ethics laws in other states. He noted it includes judges and elected city and county officials in addition to state lawmakers and appointed officials. "This will give Ohio the finest law in the nation," he said.

The bill sets up four separate ethics commissions to receive the annual financial reports— not only from incumbents seeking re-election but also from their opponents—and empowers each group to take disciplinary actions including removal from office for violators.

Power reduced

Heat wave bakes nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sizzling heat wave baked the eastern third of the nation today with little hope of relief for several more days.

A hot and humid air mass over New England was blamed Tuesday for conditions which caused a tornado to strike West Stockbridge, Mass., where four persons were killed, 31 injured and high property damage sustained.

The tornado leveled a threebuilding truck stop in West Stockbridge and damaged six homes.

The hot, humid air also caused lightning storms in Maine and Vermont. Two persons were killed in a fire in Warren, Vt., which authorities believe was started by lightning. A house and church in West Mills, Maine, were destroyed by fire, sparked by a bolt.

Electrical power failed Tuesday evening in parts of the Cleveland, Ohio, area, cutting power to 15,000 homes.

Relief from the heat was a major preoccupation in many of the nation's cities.

It was 104 at Phoenix Tuesday; 101 in Baltimore; 100 at Redwood Falls, Minn., and Sioux Falls, S.D.; 100 at Harrisburg, Pa.; 98 at New York City, and 95 at Atlantic City, N.J.

After dark, the thermometer settled back into the 70s and 80s, waiting for another lunge at temperature records today.

Thundershowers dotted the map at various locations including the western portion of the central Plains, parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Florida and the lower Mississippi Valley. Rainfall was generally less than an inch.

Cloudiness and fog rolled over parts of Oregon, Washington and Southern California and fog settled over the Ohio Valley and Appalachians. Gale warnings were posted along the extreme northern California coast.

Cold air moving slowly through the Plains states was expected to become stationary and weak, providing little relief.

The New York State Power Pool and other systems were forced to reduce voltage Tuesday when temperatures in the mid to upper 90s caused massive consumption of electricity by air conditioners. Some power failures were reported.

Auto companies closed down several Midwestern plants because of the heat wave, while some 750 sweltering workers at two other plants simply walked off their jobs.

New York City suffered through a year-high temperature of 98 degrees as Consolidated Edison reported a record power demand of 8,161 megawatts. The temperature-humidity index hit 85, which a spokesman for the National Weather Service said meant "utter misery."

In Washington, the temperature reached 97 degrees and the capital's metropolitan area was under an air pollution alert for the 17th day this summer. Hot, stagnant air holding pollution over the area was not expected to dissipate before Friday.

A spokesman for the Virginia Electric & Power Co. in Richmond said the utility had an all-time high power demand of 7,100 megawatts on Tuesday.

In the Detroit area, where the temperature reached 96 degrees, union officials prodded Chrysler Corp. into closing its engine and assembly plants in Warren, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., sending 4,700 workers home.

American Motors decided to close down its Kenosha assembly and Milwaukee body plants in Wisconsin as well as a jeep facility in Toledo, Ohio.

At Chrysler truck plants in Windsor and Warren, workers took their own emergency measures and walked out, forcing the plants to close.

At Ford Motor Co.'s Dearborn, Mich., assembly plant, many employes failed to return from breaks, forcing the plant to close after two hours. Some 2,300 workers went home early.

Council may rule in week on automobile price hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council may decide within a week whether to grant Phase 4 price increases sought by the nation's big four automakers, a council spokesman says.

The spokesman said the council would rule shortly because of the considerable publicity surrounding the requests and because a public hearing had been held.

Representatives of both Ford and GM said they would take a "hard look" at the situation for competitive reasons.

This raised the possibility that the council might trim the Ford and GM requests.

Representatives of all four automakers indicated to the council that they would probably seek additional price increases shortly to cover higher labor and materials costs.

Henry W. Welch, vice president for finance of General Motors, said GM has not had a price increase to cover material or wage costs since December 1971, although such costs have increased $92 per vehicle on the average.

The increases now under consideration, the automakers say, are to recover the cost of government-mandated safety and antipollution equipment on 1974 models, including improvements for bumpers, seat belts and roofs.

Kenneth C. Merrill, comptroller for Ford's North American automotive operations, questioned whether "these price adjustments should be considered price increases at all, because the products are changed to give benefits to the customer that are at least equal to the costs."

That view was challenged by the only hearing witness who did not represent the automotive industry, Peter J. Petkas of the Corporate Accountability Research Group, a Ralph Nader-affiliated group.

"The mere fact that safety and emission control standards are federally mandated is no justification for unquestioningly passing their cost on to the consumer," he said.

Beef scarcity nearing end

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scarcity of beef in the supermarkets may be nearing an end, according to an Agriculture Department spokesman.

"There seems to be a little buildup under way," he said.

"Earlier this month we had verified that 70 packing houses were closed. By early this week we estimated that fewer than 50 were still closed," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

Price controls for all foods except beef were removed July 18. The lid on beef is scheduled to be removed Sept. 12.

Murder case testimony continues

Testimony in the trial of John Allen Brown, 21 of Frankfort, charged with the April 13 second degree murder of a Chillicothe girl, continued Tuesday with the calling of Lester Sanders, who was with the defendant throughout the evening. Several law enforcement officers also testified.

Brown is accused of shooting Demeatris Winfield, 17. The girl died of a gunshot wound at the home of Leonard Kelley, 721 Gregg St., shortly before 4 a.m. on Friday, April 13.

The trial was delayed this morning when the court was unable to locate the key to an office containing evidence previously introduced.

Sanders had an extensive lapse of memory when called to the stand. He remembered having taken the gun from the Gregg Street residence, scene of the shooting, and burying it, but failed to recall where he had gotten the gun, or where he had hidden it.

Sanders stated that he met Brown, along with Steve Robinson and Leonard Kelley, at Kelley's home, 721 Gregg St., on the evening of April 12. There they drank beer and listened to record albums, he said.

He testified that the group later went to Chillicothe, returning in the early morning hours of April 13. In response to questions about other places the group may have gone that night, Sanders indicated that they had been no where else.

His testimony contradicted that offered by Robinson on Monday. Robinson had stated that the group went to Wilmington College prior to leaving for Chillicothe. It had been at the college that Brown had taken LSD, according to Robinson.

Patrolman Larry Hott, of the Washington Police Department, testified about the search which uncovered the gun buried about 500 feet from the scene of shooting.

The Rev. Keith Wooley and Ptl. Bill Robinson who had taken the girl's body to Columbus for an autopsy, also testified Tuesday.

Two agents from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation reported that tests on the gun and bullet showed the bullet had been fired from the gun. They further testified that tests given the defendant revealed nitrates on Brown's right hand. Nitrates are a part of the residue of gunpowder which are

Syrian plotters are executed

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian secret police have secretly executed 42 army officers following an abortive attempt to assassinate President Hafez Assad, foreign diplomats in the Syrian capital report.

Syrian informants said 60 or so officers had disappeared after being arrested by the secret police, which is headed by Assad's brother, Col. Rifaat Assad.

The diplomats said the president was ambushed on July 12 as he was touring northern Syria. His car was riddled by bullets, and a report published in Beirut a week after said he was shot in the leg. Lebanese doctors who treated him at the time said they performed minor surgery to correct a leg inflammation.

The diplomats said the plotters were Sunni Moslems, the majority sect in Syria, who resented Assad's systematic promotion of Alawite Moslems to senior positions in the army. Assad is an Alawite, and the sect has come to dominate the ruling Baath Socialist party since he seized power in November 1971.

Decision on tapes seen late today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ruling on whether President Nixon must turn over tape recordings demanded by Watergate prosecutors was expected today from a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's decision would wrap up the first round of a historic debate headed for the Supreme Court.

Nixon's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, and his courtroom adversary, special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, agree that the final decision will influence government and the presidency for years to come.

Cox set the stage for the confrontation when he subpoenaed nine tapes of conversations between the President and a number of White House aides implicated in the Watergate scandal.

The Senate Watergate Committee, whose hearings produced the disclosure that Oval Office conversations had been taped routinely, also has gone to court to seek access to the tapes.

Committee members feel the tapes would shed light on various contradictions in the testimony of key presidential aides who appeared before the panel.

Nixon has said the tapes would be ambiguous.

He has based his refusal to disclose them on the claim of executive privilege—the theory that the Constitution grants a president the right to withhold information if he judges it to be in the national interest.

scattered in the immediate area of a gunshot.

Cross-examination of the agents revealed that this residue can be removed by thorough washing, and that some of those present at the scene, including the deceased, had not been tested.

Ptl. Dennis Brown, who took a statement from the defendant shortly after the shooting, testified that Brown had said that a person had broken into the room, shot Miss Winfield and had run out the back door.

Sgt. Charles Long and Ptl. Mike Stritenberger, the first officers on the scene, had earlier testified that when they arrived the back door was secured in such a way as to make such entrance and exit, impossible. They saw no way that anyone could have entered and left except by the front door.

During their testimony, neither Steve Robinson nor Sanders had mentioned seeing anyone break into or leave the residence.

Each of the officers was asked if the defendant had acted abnormally, showed any signs of having taken drugs, or appeared intoxicated, at the time that they had seen him. Although none of the officers claimed to be experts in the field of drugs, they said that they had observed no abnormal behavior.

The trial is being heard in the sweltering Common Pleas Courtroom, and Judge Evelyn W. Coffman has repeatedly thanked the jury for giving the testimony their fullest attention.

The State's case, presented by Otis Hess and Robert Simpson, is expected to conclude late Wednesday or early Thursday.

About 27,000 children rode, 13,000 fewer than forecast in a judge's busing order. (AP Wirephoto)

24 persons die in crash of U.S. jet

MADRID (AP) — A U.S. military cargo plane crashed Tuesday night near Madrid and 24 of its 25 occupants were killed, the Spanish Air Ministry reported.

The C141 StarLifter jet was based at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey and was on its way from Athens, Greece, to the U.S. Air Force base at Torrejon, 16 miles east of Madrid. The crash occurred 40 miles east of Madrid.

The Air Force at Torrejon identified the lone survivor as William H. Ray of McGuire Air Force Base, N.J. He suffered multiple fractures of his left leg after apparently being thrown from the aircraft on impact.

The names of the 24 other persons aboard were withheld pending notification of their families. Spanish news agencies said the plane carried a crew of eight and 17 passengers, including several women and children who were relatives of American pilots.

The plane slammed into the ground about a mile outside the little town of Hueva as the craft was preparing to land at the joint Spanish-American base. Local police said none of the townspeople was affected.

The Air Ministry said the plane crashed after losing contact with the Torrejon control tower. It exploded when it hit the ground and burned, the ministry said.

U.S. and Spanish military authorities sealed off the crash site, and American rescue personnel and investigators were sifting through the wreckage today.

The Air Force said in addition to the people aboard, the plane was carrying nearly nine tons of cargo.

The Starlifter was attached to the Military Airlift Command. The Air Force said it was that command's first fatal accident since 1965.

UAW rejects Chrysler pact

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers bargainers, rejecting a Chrysler Corp. contract offer as a "mockery," resume their efforts today to win an acceptable pact from the automaker.

"We're not clear about what happens next," UAW President Leonard Woodcock said on Tuesday after union bargainers unanimously rejected the offer minutes after Chrysler submitted it. The offer called for three per cent wage hikes in each of the next three years.

The union has not detailed its wage demands in negotiating with Chrysler, the bargaining target in seeking new contracts with the nation's three largest automakers. Contracts with Chrysler, Ford and General Motors expire Sept. 14.

"I don't think they want a strike, but they're not working very hard to avoid one," UAW Vice President Doug Fraser said after seeing Chrysler's offer.

"Any optimism we may have had about a settlement certainly seems remote," Woodcock added.

William O'Brien, Chrysler vice president for personnel, said last week that the company's offer would be within federal guidelines holding wage and fringe benefit hikes to 6.2 per cent.

On Tuesday, he told newsmen, "We don't intend to talk about costs. We'll just say it is within government guidelines."

Woodcock also declined to discuss over-all costs of the Chrysler package, saying, "I'd be ashamed. It well could go into the negative."

Decision pending in contempt case

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—A decision by a special three-judge panel of the 11th District Court of Appeals is pending today in a contempt of court case involving Lake County commissioners.

The judges heard final arguments Tuesday but set no date for a decision despite a plea for speed.

The three commissioners had appealed the contempt citation against them issued by Judge Ross Avellone of the Lake County Juvenile Court in a dispute over budget funds for Avellone's operations.

Albert Schwartz, Avellone's attorney, requested a quick decision, contending the juvenile court would run out of funds Sept. 15 and would have to stop operations.

Avellone issued the citation after the commissioners trimmed his $380,000 budget request to $290,000. The judge contended his entry of the budget request in the court journal made full allocation mandatory.

The commissioners, represented by Ted Clamer, assistant Lake County prosecutor, contend the state statute permitting judges to issue such a citation is unconstitutional. Clamer said it deprived the commissioners of their right to due process under the law.

He also contended it was impossible for the commissioners to grant Avellone all the money he requested because the commission didn't have sufficient funds to do so.

Tuesday's arguments bought up a similar 1971 Trumbull County case in which a probate judge had found the Trumbull County commission in contempt of court over budget matters. In that case, the appellate court upheld the probate judge; but the Ohio Supreme Court reversed the decision, ruling that the judge hadn't exhausted other remedies available to him.

It was argued Tuesday that the probate court had less authority than that of the juvenile court and that the journal entry step taken by Avellone wasn't taken in the earlier case.

The three judges, appointed after the regular judges withdrew because they deal annually with the commission, were Edward Mahoney of the 9th District Court of Appeals; Joseph O'Neill, 7th District Court of Appeals, and Oscar Hunsicker, a retired appellate judge.

No trace was found of the two men who took an undetermined amount of money from the Dog and Suds restaurant.

Massive electric generating expansion planned by firms

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Plans for an estimated $3 billion electric generating construction program for northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania were announced Tuesday by the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and four other firms.

The program provides for the construction by 1983 of one coal-fired and four nuclear power generating units with a planned capacity of five million kilowatts.

Other companies involved in the project are Duquesne Light Co., Ohio Edison Co., Pennsylvania Power Co. and Toledo Edison Co.

CEI said the new facilities would aid in meeting the increasing need for electric energy of about 2.2 million customers in a 14,000-square-mile area.

None of the plants will be built in its service area.

Plans call for two nuclear units to be built by Ohio Edison Co. near Berlin Heights in Erie County, Ohio. Each unit will generate 1.2 million kilowatts when they become operational in January 1982 and December 1983, CEI said.

Two nuclear units, each with 906,000-kilowatt capacity, are to be added to the Davis-Besse Nuclear Power Station near Port Clinton where a similar unit, jointly owned by CEI and Toledo Edison, is now under construction. These units are to be in operation in June 1981 and January 1983.

Another unit, to be built near Shippingport, Pa., was announced last month and is an 825,000-kilowatt coal-fired generator. It will be built and operated by Ohio Edison and Pennsylvania Power. The facility is slated for commercial operation in April, 1978, CEI said.

While each of the five new units will be built and operated by individual companies comprising the Central Area Power Coordination Group, they will be jointly owned and the power allocated on a proportionate basis, CEI said.

With the announcement of plans for the five new units, companies in the power group have 14 generating units either completed, under construction or planned.

Opinion And Comment

Rogers to Kissinger

The Rogers-to-Kissinger move has been rumored so long that it came, when President Nixon announced it, with a flavor of anticlimax. The resignation of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and nomination of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger to replace him is nevertheless of marked significance.

This is especially so because of the President's announcement that in addition to heading the Department of State Kissinger would continue to function as his assistant for national security affairs.

Thus it is evident that Mr. Nixon has no intention of relinquishing his active, direct control of foreign policy. With Kissinger at the helm of State, indeed, it appears that the President will be more firmly in charge of the conduct of foreign affairs than ever.

It has commonly been remarked of Rogers that he has been relegated to a back seat, with Kissinger playing by far the more active role both in formulating and implementing policy.

Unlike many things that are commonly remarked, this is true. Rogers has in notable degree experienced the frustrations that go with having a title but seeing someone else exercise the power.

He has served honorably and well in this limited capacity, however. And only a couple of days before the announcement of his imminent departure, in a news conference which now has the aspect of a swan song, he said some things that his successor would do well to ponder.

On that occasion Rogers found fault with the administration in two areas of concern. He condemned the attitude which fostered such excesses as the burglarizing of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in the name of national security.

He also scorned the falsification of Cambodian bombing reports which kept the truth from Congress and the public over a period of years. These observations made by a conscientious man leaving high office should be taken to heart by Kissinger - and, we say with due respect, by the President.

More news meetings needed

Seen in retrospect, the President's San Clemente press conference prompts two conclusions. One is that he apparently did himself some good by submitting at last to newsmen's questions about Watergate. Some of the questions were tough and penetrating, but even in dealing with these, Mr. Nixon was able to put forward his views on the scandal that afflicts his administration.

The other major conclusion we draw is that an important point about presidential press conferences in general was again illustrated. This is that they offer little chance for incisive, persistent followup on lines of inquiry.

This was shown with special emphasis in the San Clemente conference because it was newsmen's first opportunity in more than five months to ask the President about Watergate — about anything, for that matter. They were working from a tremendous backlog of questions.

Some of these arose from the weeks of testimony by numerous witnesses before the Senate Watergate investigating committee. Some were prompted by the President's televised addresses, which left certain points unanswered. In some cases, the only effective way to clarify some of these points would have been to ask a question, and then another following from it, and then another and another.

This was impossible at San Clemente. The President would take a question, deal with it briefly or with a small speech more or less on point, and then designate another questioner. Followup was minimal.

This is always true to some extent, given the format developed for press conferences over the years. The problem would be greatly lessened, though, were meetings with newsmen held frequently — at least once every couple of weeks. We respectfully urge upon Mr. Nixon that his would be much in the public interest.

Latest Soviet MIRV tests

WASHINGTON — The curtain is going up on an old familiar drama. The scene opens with wild cries of alarm, "The Russians are coming, the Russians are coming," and we are all defenseless, at their mercy, because of a few mushy headed disarmament idiots.

The centerpiece this time is the revelation that the Soviet Union has successfully tested on two of their missiles an independently targeted multiple reentry vehicle (MIRV). The curtain raiser is faithful to the well-tried formula. News of the MIRV breakthrough is leaded to heralds of doom and they promptly set the drums to beating.

This is based, it seems to me, on a fundamental illusion of America's inevitable superiority. It has been true since the beginning of the nuclear age when the United States was the sole possessor of the atomic bomb. Years would pass before the Soviets could come up with a bomb, it was said.

When they tested their first atomic device several years in advance of most estimates it brought a shock of surprise. The parallel with MIRV is close. For more than three years the United States has been installing multiple warheads on land-based missiles and on those carried by Polaris and Poseidon submarines. While Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird warned that the Soviets would develop MIRV, the prevailing belief was that their achievement of this advanced technology was some way off. There was even the suggestion that the Russians might refrain from MIRVing with the hope that this would make it easier to reach agreement in SALT II on limiting the number of offensive missiles.

ANY TECHNOLOGY the United States can achieve, so can the Soviets. That is the lesson which seems never to be learned as this rerun of the old drama is on once again.

America's MIRV missiles were the reason we could accept the fact of a superior number overall of Soviet missiles without MIRVs. In the next four to five years, as the first Soviet tests move on to deployment, that advantage will disappear.

For the doom sayers not only does this put the nation in deadly peril but it rules out any further effort to arrive at a mutual agreement to cut back strategic armaments. There is, however, a less cataclysmic view. With several years still to go for deployment, the Soviets may regard their MIRV as a bargaining chip in the SALT talks to resume in the fall in Geneva.

On our side we hear a lot about bargaining chips. The $12 billion plus long-range submarine trident is justified as a bargaining counter against a reported similar new sub the Soviets are said to have in the works.

With the whole disarmament apparatus so downgraded by the President, the burden of trying to reconcile the new MIRV development will fall on Henry A. Kissinger, adviser on national security affairs. Kissinger played a leading part in the talks between the President and Leonid I. Brezhnev in the White House in June. The surprising news out of those talks was that the two leaders had agreed a limitation on offensive missiles could be reached in 1974.

KISSINGER, along with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, played the central role in the breakthrough on SALT I, first in May, 1971, and then in the climax which came just before the Moscow summit a year later. In the Byzantine atmosphere of the White House he was subjected to attacks from two different directions. First it was leaded that he had been so dovish as to yield to Soviet blandishments and accept a secondary position for the United States. Later his enemies in the White House put it out that he was the supreme hawk who had taken in all his liberal admirers.

One of the imponderables is how much Kissinger has been sideswiped by the Watergate mess. His role at this point is supremely important if the strategic arms race is not to go into a new perhaps irrevocable spiral. As head of the disarmament and Arms Control Agency, the President named Fred C. Ikle, a gentle, scholarly man whose latest public utterance on the arms race seemed to cast doubt on whether any limitations should be agreed to.

In his official revelation of the Soviet success with MIRV Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger made one statement likely to be downplayed in the currect drama. In spite of the new development and what it means for the future, neither the Soviet Union nor the United States has first-strike capacity which could prevent a retaliatory blow. Cruising the seven seas the Poseidon and Polaris submarines would still be able to destroy the attacher.

Red novelist says life threatened

MOSCOW (AP) — Nobel Prize novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a rare and bluntly outspoken interview with two Western newsmen, says his life has been threatened. He says that, if he is imprisoned or killed, "the main part of my works will be published."

The world-celebrated author, whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, said he and his family have received warnings and "if I am declared killed or suddenly mysteriously dead," the world could conclude that "I have been killed with the approval of the KGB or by it."

The KGB is the Soviet security police organization.

Solzhenitsyn, 54, is the author of such famed novels as "The First Circle," "Cancer Ward" and "August 1914." He won the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature, but authorities prevented him from receiving it in his homeland.

The author was interviewed by The Associated Press and Le Monde of Paris. He accepted written questions and wrote out answers to those he chose to respond to.

The bearded writer, dressed in an open-necked shirt and slacks, was friendly and animated as he discussed developments that have convinced him the cause of individual freedom in the Soviet Union is at a low ebb.

Some other main points of Solzhenitsyn's statements:

—What he calls "the main part of my works" is as yet unpublished.

—He will continue publishing his books in the West. Now that the Soviet Union has signed the international copyright convention, he also will give his works to "samizdat," the clandestine "self-publishing" system used by Soivet dissenters.

—He will further defy officialdom by moving to Moscow to live this winter, despite denial of a permit.

—He wanted particularly to speak out in defense of the noted physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, a prominent Soviet champion of human rights, because he is convinced the increased harassment of Sakharov and others shows the situation is "at a nadir."

"WHO'S BEING INVESTIGATED THIS MORNING, ABERNATHY?"

Hal Boyle . . . Today's success story

SUN CITY CENTER, Fla (AP) — Every year thousands of young people from all over America migrate to New York City, hoping to find fame or fortune in the nation's largest metropolis.

Jerry Gould, a native New Yorker, reversed the trend. He left Manhattan because he could no longer stand it, found opportunity in Florida, and now is one of the country's larger home builders.

"I simply got tired of being pushed about and intimidated in New York," he remarked. "The people who like it feel it is the best place in the world to be, but I feel sorry for them.

"There are a lot of cultural advantages in the big city, but I resent the fact that most of the people who live there don't make enough money to enjoy them. Unless you have money in New York, where's the fun?

"That isn't true in Florida, and other parts of the country. Here you don't have to be rich to play a little golf, go fishing, or just sit and enjoy the climate."

It wasn't sour grapes that led Jerry, who had spent three years in the Army during World War II as a medical technician aboard a hospital ship, to pull up stakes and move south in 1950.

He was a highly successful advertising salesman in Manhattan and had saved up enough money to buy a partnership in his father's retail clothing firm in Miami. Within a short time he also had become a partner in a leading advertising firm and then entered the booming land development field in 1955.

Since then he has built 6,000 homes in Florida and elsewhere.

A pioneer in obtaining legislation to outlaw shady land sale schemes, he prefers the role of "community developer" rather than that of a promoter merely selling land on the installment plan.

He and a partner designed and built Lehigh Acres, a community of some 15,000 people 13 miles from Fort Myers.

But Jerry expects Sun City Center here to be his real life monument in community development. As president of the WG Development Corp., he bought the 2,000-acre site from the Del E. Webb Corp., founder of Sun City, Ariz. The site has since been enlarged to 11,000 acres, and by 1980 Gould expects 30,000 people will be living there in three adjoining communities.

"That's far enough, I feel, to project for the future," said Jerry. "Theoretically, we have room to put 60,000 residences here and a population of 150,000 persons."

Then he added candidly: "But I'm 49 now, and I may not live to see it."

At present Sun City Center is largely a retirement town limited to residents aged 50 or over, where children under 18 can come only as vistors. Later segments appealing to younger family groups are planned, as well as an area for small ranch estates.

The developers also hope to draw residents from such nearby cities as Tampa, Sarasota and St. Petersburg.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Is a 73-year-old swinger harmless?

DEAR ABBY: I recently became very much attracted to a gentleman who proudly admits to being 73. He's a snappy dresser and is full of fun. I am a middle-aged woman, but this man leaves me in the dust when it comes to dancing, tennis, golf, and any other pysical exercise you can name.

He seems very much interested in me. My question: At his age, is he harmless?

JOYCE

DEAR JOYCE: If you mean what I think you mean, if he's "harmless" he won't be able to do you any good. But whether he can do you any good without doing you any harm will depend on YOUR condition.

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong when you advised against reporting the fraudulent welfare recipient. If someone told you that he had witnessed a robbery, would you advise him to "judge not"?

Welfare agencies welcome legitimate complaints, and each complaint is objectively investigated. The complaintant may remain anonymous if desired, and his name is never revealed to the client. However, vague statements such as, "I know 10 people on welfare who drive Cadillacs and have $1,000 in the bank," are stupid and useless. A person making such a comment usually cannot name a single person who even comes close to that description. Complaints should be as specific and factual as possible.

We find that most complaints are not well-founded because the complainant is trying to "get back" at the recipient, or that he has drawn a wrong conclusion by not knowing all the facts in the case. But it is worthwhile to investigate each complaint.

If fraudulent and ineligible cases can be eliminated from the welfare roles, more resources will be available to help those who are truly in need, and the burden will be lighter on Mr. Taxpayer.

WEST VIRGINIA SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR W.C.S.W.: Thank you for your fair and helpful letter. Your answerwas was much better than mine. It believe all witnessed crimes should be reported, but encouraging every American to "inform" on his neighbor for an assumed wron-doing would lead us uncomfortably close to becoming a police state, and that I abhor.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that lady who wants to be spanked on her bare bottom: I will gladly oblige her. I am a 68-year-old widower. I am also a retired upholsterer with 50 years experience on seats and bottoms.

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the great leap forward in SinoAmerican relations, there may be a long wait ahead for the three U.S. television networks that want to establish permanent news bureaus in Peking.

The most optimistic forecast comes from Elmer Lower, president of ABC News, who recently returned from a threeweek "working visit" to mainland China.

"It's at least a year away," he says, keeping his fingers crossed that ABC will be the first allowed to set up shop in Peking. The competition among ABC, CBS and NBC to be the first is intense.

Last April, the networks' high-level campaigning began with the China visit of William S. Paley, board chairman of CBS, and Gordon Manning, a senior vice president of CBS News.

They were followed on July 20 by Lower; Leonard H. Goldenson, board chairman of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.; and Desmond Wong, a Chinese-speaking ABC News film editor here for 14 years.

Top NBC officials have been trying to arrange a similar visit, but NBC says there's no word yet on when they'll be allowed to go.

Lower's party left China on Aug. 10 with an agreement to exchange television newsfilm, documentary and sports programs and personnel. But no Peking bureau was in the agreement.

He said officials of China's Central Broadcasting Bureau, when asked about the matter, said there were problems of finding both housing and translators for American television news teams.

"So the net effect of what they were saying was, 'We'll give it further consideration,' and the way I translate that is, 'No, not for the present,'" Lower said.

He said they gave no indication of when they'd allow any American news bureau to set up shop and "I don't think they know when they'll do it.

"While they gave these reasons, I heard another possible reason from people who've made the same request and from people who see it from arm's length—not all of them in broadcasting.

"They say that at this delicate stage of U.S.-Chinese relations, they (mainland Chinese officials) may not want three American networks, the press associations and perhaps a couple of (newspaper) specials running all around the country doing highly competitive daily reporting.

"So that may be a reason," Lower said. "They may prefer to play this game on rotation— letting one news team in for one assignment, letting one in for another. And actually, they're doing pretty good with that so far."

Ohio Power talks stall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Negotiators for the Ohio Power Co. and striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers met for contract talks Tuesday. No progress was reported.

The session marked the first time the two sides had sat down together since about 500 Ohio Power employes walked off their jobs July 1 at locations in Newark, Zanesville and Steubenville.

Company spokesmen said no new talks have been scheduled by federal mediator Joseph P. Santa Emma. Santa Emma would not comment on the progress of the talks.

About 1,300 Utility Workers of America employes of the company, meanwhile, continued their strike. That dispute involves UWA workers at plants in Ohio and West Virginia.

No progress was reported in those negotiations.

Former queen narrates news show

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian beauty Ieda Maria Vargas Athanasio — Miss Universe of 1963 — has returned to the public eye, a decade later, this time with a daily TV news program in this bustling southern Brazilian city.

"I'm doing this for professional reasons. I'm not trying to be a store-window mannequin, nor am I preaching any feminine independence moviement like Women's Lib," Mrs. Athanasio, now 28 and married, told an interviewer.

Women news commentators on TV are rare in Brazil, where "machismo" — male dominance — is still a way of life.

"I didn't go on television to prove that I'm independent," Mrs. Athanasio stated. "My goal is simply to present a good program."

As Ieda Vargas, the green-eyed, brown-haired Brazilian teen-ager became an international beauty symbol a decade ago by winning the Miss Universe contest in Miami Beach.

MISS VARGAS eventually returned to Brazil and in 1968 married local real estate agent Jose Carlos Athanasio. The couple has a son, Rafael, 2, and another baby is on the way.

Mrs. Athanasio says she's "much more mature" than when she was Miss Universe. But Porto Alegre TV viewers agree that she hasn't lost the youthful beauty that helped her win the title.

"She creates a good impression on camera and has a hoarse voice that is sensational," says Channel 10 news director Carolos Bastos, her new boss.

"I'm still nervous. I can do better," Mrs. Athanasio admitted.

Athanasio told a reporter he "agreed" to let his wife take the TV job, "because that way she will develop herself personally." "Although his South American country has no laws prohibiting women from taking most jobs whenever they want, the "machismo" tradition dictates that wives don't go to work without their husband's okay.

"THE IMPORTANT thing is for women to pursue their own goals and feel proud of their own accomplishments, whether it's in the home or performing a service, such as working in television. Women should not let themselves be bothered by other people's opinions," the ex-Miss Universe declared.

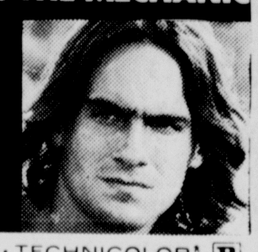

Mrs. Athanasio holds a typically Brazilian attitude about the importance of the home and the family in relation to a career: "My greatest preoccupation now is the baby I'm going to have in a few months."

But then she added: "You know, I'd like to have it in the morning, so I could announce the news of the birth on my TV show that night."

Fire protection is theme for Rotary Club program

Fire protection routines were outlined by two members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department at the noon luncheon of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Chief M.L. (Joe) Denen and Lt. David Seaman pointed out several fire hazards and precautions that businessmen and home owners alike should be aware of during their presentation to the Rotarians.

Seaman said all businessmen and home owners should be certain that their insurance will cover all losses caused by a major fire and that it is also important that persons maintain complete inventory figures on the contents of their home or business.

The Washington C.H. fireman also mentioned fire hazards with a color slide presentation. He recalled a fire at a local industry. Seaman said that when the fire department responded to the blaze a semi-trailer rig was blocking access to the fire hydrant.

In explaining a number of time-saving ideas, Seaman said that businessmen should be sure there is easy access to fire hydrants, sprinkler systems and fire lanes to the building.

He also pointed out hazards in the home, especially using aerosol spray cans around open flames. He said the pressurized spray cans are quite flammable and very dangerous and housewives should be careful using them while working in the kitchen.

THE COLOR SLIDE presentation also included pictures of a routine day around the Washington C.H. fire station. The slides pictured the firemen making checklists of the various equipment and the routine housekeeping duties including tours and meetings with auxiliary firemen and other fire departments in Fayette County.

Seaman spoke about some of the equipment used by the Washington C.H. department, including self-contained breathing devices. He also explained that two members of the Washington C.H. department are qualified scuba divers.

The training program conducted by the Washington C.H. firemen was also mentioned. Seaman said members of the department recently demonstrated the proper use of fire extinguishers to employes at the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center.

Problems created through insufficient manpower at the Washington C.H. fire department were also discussed. It was pointed out that the fire department has only 12 men and the force should be at least 18.

In summary, Sheriff Don Thompson praised the fire department for its work and quick response. Sheriff Thompson singled out a single car crash recently in which a Circleville driver was trapped in a car which had caught fire. He praised the firemen for their assistance in saving the man's life.

Paul Crosby, vice president, conducted the business meeting. Bill Hendren was the program chairman.

Visiting Rotarians were Fred Keeler, of Hillsboro; Myron Haradon, of Circleville; Robert Head and Dr. Walter Felson, both of Greenfield; Richard Kilian, of Mount Joy, Pa.; T. Edward Jones, of Hong Kong, and David Kohli and Robert McNeely, both of Mount Sterling.

Phone talks hung up over issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An official of General Telephone Co. said Tuesday that wages and union security remain the stumbling blocks in a 45-day strike by the Communication Workers of America.

Robert C. Fletcher, chief company negotiator, made the statement after a bargaining session with the union and federal mediator Howard Hughes produced no progress toward settlement of the contract dispute.

"It is apparent the two overriding demands of the union are an agency shop and about 18 per cent more in wages over the company's offer," said Fletcher, vice president of company personnel.

Fletcher said the CWA wants a modified agency shop which would require all new employes to join the union or pay a service fee equal to union dues.

He said the CWA negotiators' wage demands would amount to about $240,000 more annually than the company's pay offer. The CWA has asked for 10 per cent, and General Telephone has offered 7 per cent.

No new bargaining sessions have been scheduled.

Faith, determination keep center going

MILLSTONE, Ky. (AP) — Mable Kiser believes the Lord will help her continue to serve the poor folk of the Appalachian mountains.

She's pretty sure the government won't.

Mrs. Kiser directs the Millstone Sewing Center in rural Letcher County. It's a tiny operation deep in the Kentucky mountains and was one of the first Appalachian promects funded by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

Throughout its seven-year history Millstone has struggled to obtain federal funding. Community support and the faith and determination of the women who run the center have kept it alive and the money has come through each year.

Now the future is uncertain.

Federal funds will soon run out and Mrs. Kiser expects her final cut-off notice to arrive any day.

"We'll just try to stay alive from month to month," she said.

She trusts the Lord will show her the way to carry on her work with the poor.

"The whole sewing center is built on faith," she said. "From the beginning the Lord has supplied our needs.

THE CENTER employs elderly women from Millstone, a former mining town with a population of 576, and neighboring communities to sew clothes for the poor.

The women cut and sew new material and remake used clothing received at the center. Each needy family that contacts the center receives a package containing three garments for each member of the family.

The center also aids families whose homes have burned. Those so-called "burnouts" receive used clothing and sheets, quilts and pillowcases, and anything else the center can provide.

Each year the center serves about 500 families, with an average of seven persons in a family. The center reaches mainly those in Letcher County, but also employs a "roving seamstress" and has started a small operation at Hindman in Knott County.

LAST JULY federal funds were cut back from $52,000 annually to less than $40,000 and the sewing center staff was reduced from 14 to eight. However, Mrs. Kiser said production stayed about the same.

"The Lord stretches it," she explained. "Only God can give you something over money."

All maintenance work on the former school house is done by volunteers from the community. They have drilled a deep well and installed a pump, reroofed the building and painted the four-room structure inside and out.

Money for maintenance is raised through raffles and pie sales. Federal funds cover only salaries and materials, Mrs. Kiser said.

General Accounting Office: more than bookkeepers

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has come a long way since the days when its auditors spent most of their time checking government ledgers to make sure the taxpayers' money was being spent properly.

The GAO still has plenty of accountants on its payroll. And it still keeps a close eye on government spending.

But the congressional watchdog agency tries to do much more.

"We are trying to make our work more relevant to the congressional intent," says Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, who has headed the agency since 1966.

"We are trying to look into the question whether programs are working or not, getting into program effectiveness, program evaluation," says the 59-year-old Kansas-born Ph. D. and career public servant.

The 3,100 professionals on the GAO staff include lawyers, engineers, industrial management specialists, business administration graduates, statisticians, actuaries, systems analysts and computer experts.

There is even one medical doctor because some of the most expensive programs GAO checks on are in the health field.

The agency also has a number of consultants on call for specialized inquiries.

The increasingly variegated professional staff gives a measure of how widely GAO's activities have spread beyond the old assignment of auditing the books and making sure the dollars appropriated were spent for designated purposes and no other.

During one recent month, chosen at random, GAO sent 27 reports to Congress. Among the titles:

—Progress and problems in achieving objectives of the school lunch program.

—Need for improved controls for identifying and correcting safety defects on light aircraft.

—Need for improved consumer protection in interstate and land sales.

—Social Services: do they help welfare recipients achieve self-support or reduced dependency.

—The federal catalog program: progress and problems in attaining a uniform identification system for supplies.

—Progress and problems of U.S. assistance for land reform in Vietnam.

—Extent of cost growth and delays in construction programs of the Department of Defense.

—Opportunities for improving the Atomic Energy Commission's administration of agreements with states regulating users of radioactive materials.

—Analysis of cost estimates for the space shuttle and two alternate programs.

Part of GAO's work load, Staats estimates 10 per cent, is dictated by specific statutes.

His agency is required, for example, to audit the books of government corporations. Some single-purpose laws, such as the one authorizing government guarantee of loans to the Lockheed Corp., specifically require GAO oversight and reports.

Requests from Congress account for 25 per cent of GAO's effort, and this segment is growing.

Some of the requests come from committee chairmen, and GAO treats most of these as commands.

Others come from individual members and, while the agency does not look on these as having the legal force of committee requests, it tries to avoid flatly turning any down.

Sometimes requests from individual members fall into a pattern that suggests a general survey and report to Congress as a whole. In other cases, GAO staffers negotiate with the inquiring lawmaker's office and agree on reasonable limits for investigation.

The rest of GAO's projects, roughly two-thirds, are self-generated.

The agency keeps a resident staff on Capitol Hill, closely in touch with committee staffs, and has others detailed to major executive agencies.

The GAO also has 16 regional offices in the United States, including one in Hawaii, and four in foreign countries, including one in Saigon which may be phased out.

These outlying representatives comprising more than half the GAO staff, are under instructions to keep abreast of the far-flung governmental operations, anticipate developments in which Congress will be interested and make suggestions for studies.

Reports, often critical, on individual Defense Department contracts were a stock in trade of the GAO during much of the 60's.

There are many fewer such reports now. Staats has cited three reasons for the shift in emphasis:

—The Pentagon's own Defense Contract Audit Agency has been established to take over most of such individual audits.

—The Truth in Negotiations Act, for which GAO pressed, requires contractors to submit certified cost and price data in their negotiations.

—GAO has broadened its investigative scope.

The watchdog agency enjoys generally good relations with its master, Congress. It has little trouble over its annual budget, which may reach $100 million this year.

But the relationship has not always been one of unalloyed affection.

In 1965, the year before Staats became comptroller general, a House Government Operations subcommittee looked into allegations that, among other things, the GAO was putting headline-hunting titles on its reports on defense contracts and making them public before the firms concerned had a chance to see them in final form.

According to GAO sources, the subcommittee's report produced a chill in the agency that led to considerable caution for several years.

GAO apparently has long since recovered its self-assurance.

The process presumably has been helped along by the present comptroller's policy of shifting emphasis toward efficiency studies rather than searches for irregularities—although the latter have not been abandoned.

Some changes in procedures that began after the subcommittee investigation continues — for example, more neutrally worded titles and a rule that Congress and the persons reported on get copies of GAO reports a day before they are released generally.

Moreover, the GAO reproduces, essentially in full, as annexes to its reports the comments and disagreements of agencies and persons reported on.

Sources in the agency say, in fact, that there has now appeared some counter-criticism that GAO has become too easy on business. If the complaints come from both directions, they contend, GAO must be doing its job.

The agency has not hesitated to spell out in its reports instances of what it considered less than full cooperation by some of the governmental units it has studied. It has disagreed with defense agencies, units of the Treasury and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., among others.

There is some firing back.

At a recent congressional committee hearing, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, the Chief of Naval Operations, took strong exception to what he called inaccurate GAO estimates of the cost of homeporting warships in Greece.

As for his general opinion of the agency, the admiral said, "I think they serve a useful function. I think that their work, like that of every other agency, ranges from very good to very bad, and I think this particular study was neither the best nor the worst I have seen."

Zumwalt complained also that when the GAO makes a study "it is not possible for the body being investigated to see the report in time to respond in an intelligent way."

The GAO, for its part, says it allows at least 60 days for the subject of a report to study the preliminary draft and make its comments before publication.

This is one reason, Staats says, why reports sometimes appear dated. A major study requires up to 18 months to complete.

Last year, the GAO was handed an additional, potentially controversial job it did not want.

When Congress passed the Federal Election Campaign Act, requiring much recordkeeping and reporting and setting limits on spending for political advertising, it resolved a dispute as to whether the act should be administered by an independent commission by dividing the responsibility.

The GAO was given the task of overseeing the reporting provisions relating to campaigns for president and vice president; the development of advertising spending regulations for all candidates for federal office, and auditing and reporting on the campaign fund built up by the dollar checkoffs taxpayers authorize on their income tax returns.

The secretary of the Senate and clerk of the House were given major responsibility for those provisions of the act regulating campaign activities for their branches.

Staats created an Office of Federal Elections within the GAO and brought in an old Budget Bureau colleague, Phillip S. Hughes, to head it.

Hughes, in an interview, called the act workable, but not perfect.

But he said he thinks he and his staff of about 30, who have the job of overseeing some 2,000 registered political committees and groups, have made progress.

Many of the campaign committees are hit-and-run affairs put together for a single effort, he said. But he said that among the continuing ones, such as national party and state central committees, the word is out that "you'd better watch out for those bastards from the GAO. We didn't think they'd come around, but they did."

Hughes said his unit has referred about 30 cases to the Justice Department. Most, he said, are traceable to sloppy and amateurish record keeping and groups of both parties have been cited.

But, he said, "The public knows more than it ever knew before, I have some personal pride in thinking campaigns will never be the same, as a result of disclosures. We missed some and we caught some."

The GAO, now described by its head as "the eyes and ears of the Congress, performing a management information service," was created in 1921 by the Budget and Accounting Act. The same law set up the Bureau of the Budget, now the Office of Management and Budget.

The General Accounting Office belongs to Congress, as the budget office belongs to the president.

The comptroller general, it is true, is appointed by the president for a 15-year term, but once a comptroller is confirmed by the Senate only Congress can remove him. It never has.

The salary is $42,500 a year, the same as a senator or representative, and at the end of his term he may retire on full pay.

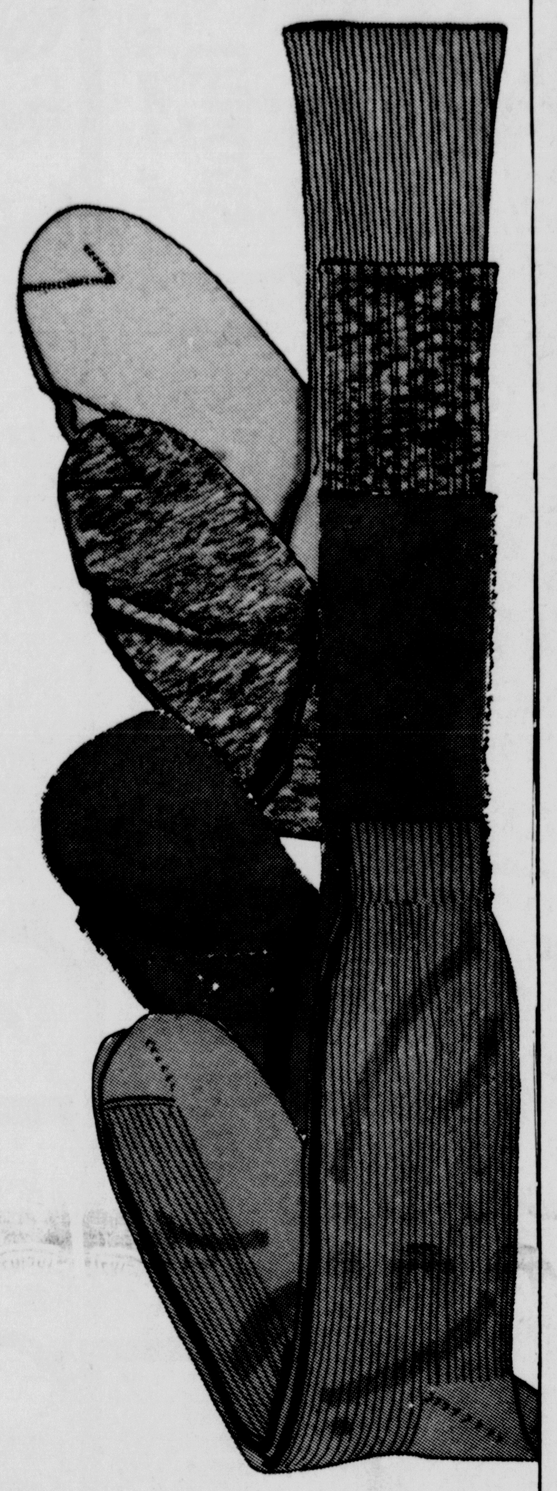

He thus enjoys a notable degree of independence.

The GAO staff is under Civil Service, with the attendant protections and prohibitions against political influence.

Staats was deputy director of the Bureau of the Budget, a registered Democrat but essentially a nonpolitical career civil servant, when President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed him comptroller general.

Prison inmates may be paid for work in Arizona test

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP)— Warden Harold J. Cardwell says inmates of the Arizona State Prison may be paid for work performed if the legislature approves a $260,000 wage-incentive plan.

Cardwell said Tuesday the request would be included in his 1974-75 budget as part of an effort to improve morale among inmates.

Cardwell left the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, this summer to become warden at this Arizona prison. The Ohio prison was being phased out. "I think that all the inmates should be paid something for working," Cardwell said. "This is one of the things that needs to be done."

The legislature approved $37,300 for the program on a trial basis in the 1972-73 prison budget. The warden said he would ask $217,500 more because "the incentive plan has proved its worth."

Nearly 200 of the more than 1,400 inmates are participating. The program pays an hourly rate starting at two cents and increasing to a maximum of 33 cents.

"The problem we now have is that we get a lot of men who can do nothing but unskilled labor and we don't have the money to pay them for this," Cardwell said.

He hopes to see inmates in maximum security receive about 10 cents an hour for work, those in lesser security status 15 cents.

Prisoners are allowed to draw $40 a month from any funds they may have on account for purchases at the prison commissary.

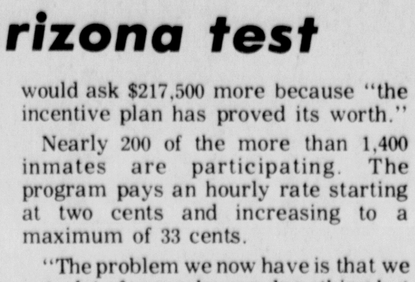

Crews continue road work

Mowing and road maintenance are on the agenda this week for city, county and state road crews.

County Engineer Charles P. Wagner said the county crews will be resurfacing Robinson Road, the White Oak Road, Beatty Road and other roads in Perry Township. Workmen are also spray patching roads in Jefferson Township, working on the Miller Ditch along Ohio 729, and mowing weeds.

Bill Duncan, acting superintendent of the city service department, said the city workmen are building driveways, patching streets and mowing weeds. Crews are also working on school signs and painting crosswalks.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Highway Department in Washington C.H., said the state crews would be operating six mowers this week, installing new drains along the new section of Ohio 753, and working on highway berms on Ohio 41, north of Jeffersonville, and U.S. 62, south of Washington C.H. He said a resurfacing project is planned for U.S. 35 near the Plamer Road.

RIGHT ON TARGET — Descending at about 12 feet per second, a member of the Kings Island Skydiving Team steers his special parachute so that he will land on a designated target. The skydivers jump from altitudes up to 8,000 feet and perform a number of freefall stunts during their descent. Smoke bombs attached to their feet add color to the exhibition.

Bicycling minister to mark 50th anniversary

If you think bicycle riding is just for kids, you'd better take another think.

A 78-year-old retired Methodist minister, who will mark 50 years in the services of the church and humanity Friday, insists you never get too old to ride a bike and that, if you do, you'll live longer.

Although the Rev. Cloyce D. Copley, 221 Gardner Ct., has passed his allotted three score years and ten, there is rarely a day when the weather permits that he is not on his bicycle. He rides for pleasure, for exercise and to do the shopping and then back home with the basket full of groceries hung on the handlebars. It's not that he has to go shopping on his bicycle; for the Copleys have a compact car they use when they go places together. Then why does he ride his bicycle? His answer is simple: "I want to live longer."

The golden anniversary was celebrated last Tuesday in the parsonage of the Broadway Methodist Church in Toledo with his two sons and two daughters and their families there for the occasion. His son, Norman, was the host. His other son, Hal, of Vandalia, and his family had recently returned from a missionary tour in Italy.

The Rev. Mr. Copley, a tall angular man, is robust, hale and hearty — the evidence that bicycles are not just for kids.

Incidentally, more and more adults — all of them older than the Rev. Mr. Copley — are among the growing number of bicyclists. Often the mother and father, with a tiny tot perched on a seat behind, go out for their evening ride. Many have the newfangled 10-speed bikes, but not the Rev. Mr. Copley; the plain old vintage type is good enough for him.

IT WAS BACK before World War I that a Wood County farm boy, with dreams of a quiet life on the land, entered Ohio State University to learn more about the developing sciences of agriculture.

Cloyce Copley entered Ohio State in 1914 and during his sophomore year in 1915 he received the spiritual call to the service of the church. While continuing his studies, he began to overcome his timidity in speaking before groups when he started preaching at various churches and meetings.

Although he took time out to serve 10 months in the Navy during World War I, he received his bachelor of science degree in agriculture from OSU.

Instead of returning to the land and farming as he had one time dreamed of doing, he devoted his time to preaching and in 1923 he received his license from the Ohio Methodist Conference. With his background in agriculture, he asked for and received assignments to preach in rural churches.

Meanwhile, he attended Boston School of Theology and after his graduation was ordained by the Methodist Conference in 1928 in special session at Springfield.

AT THE OUTBREAK of World War II, he enlisted as a chaplain and served in the Army for 40 months, mostly overseas with field hospital units.

After the war he returned to his ministry in 1949, again among the rural churches of Ohio. He retired in 1966 and he and Mrs. Copley, the former Cleora Marie Hay, came to Washington C.H. to make their home in Gardner Village for retired ministers.

Retirement, however, has not meant idleness. Although now 78 years old, he neither looks nor acts like it. He teaches a Sunday School class at Grace United Methodist, serves three days a week as chaplain at Memorial Hospital and frequently fills in for vacationing ministers of other churches. As the hospital chaplain, he spends most of his time with patients not members of churches here.

He is a past commander of the Fayette County Barracks of Veterans of World War I and is now the barracks adjutant. He also is past commander of the Burnett-Ducey Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He is now serving his third year as chaplain of the state World War I veterans organization.

THE REV. CLOYCE D. COPLEY

Cycle gang disrupts funeral rites

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — About 40 police stood by Tuesday as 75 members of the Outlaws motorcycle club attended the funeral of a member.

Police were alerted to be on hand at the funeral of John Hathaway, 25, of Norwood, Ohio. He died Friday in Warren County of a bullet wound.

Police said the shooting was "either an accident or suicide."

Nancy Massey of Charleston, W.Va., sister of Hathaway, complained. "When we got to the funeral home, there were about 75 of them sitting around outside, drinking beer and cursing.

"They came in to the funeral home and had no respect for us. They made racial insults to some Negro friends of John's and were dirty, scruffy and disrespectful."

Police said the family complained that the Outlaws forced their motorcycles and cars ahead of the family cars in the procession to the cemetery, stopped the family from having its own service, fired guns and rockets in the air and jumped in the grave with the coffin.

Family members complained the coffin was filled with "bags of stuff" and Outlaw emblems.

Police did search the motorcyclists leaving the cemetery and confiscated two guns. A half dozen others were rounded up in a wooded area by canine units. But all were released.

Capt. William Neal said no attempt was made to interfere for fear of "violating someone's civil rights."

Neal said the guns being fired were similar to firings made at military funerals and he saw nothing wrong with it.

"For all we knew," Neal said, "they may have been firing blanks."

Attendance dips at fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Hot, humid weather was blamed for holding attendance at the 120th Ohio State Fair Tuesday below the figure for the same day last year.

A spokesman said total attendance at the fair Tuesday was 158,803, compared to 161,531 for the same day in 1972. He said estimated paid admission was 78,781.

The spokesman said total attendance since the fair began last Thursday was at 1,147,375, compared to 1,121,512 for the same period last year.

The millionth fairgoer passed through a turnstile at 9 a.m. Tuesday. She was Sylvia Feduchak of Upper Arlington. Mrs. Feduchak and her four children were awarded stuffed animals and tickets for free amusement rides.

The U.S. Army Silver Eagles, a precision flight demonstration team made up of 30 helicopters and 30 men, will be featured at activities today. Harness racing and the Schlitz 40-horse hitch team are also on tap.

Sonny and Cher will perform at the grandstand.

You are extremely meticulous in handling details and sometimes drive yourself too hard in your quest for perfection. However, you are a philosopher at heart, and you do manage to ride over obstacles that would floor many others. Extremely versatile, there are many fields in which you could carve an eminent career but, notably, as writer, musician, actor, painter or educator. If attracted to the business world, you would make an excellent salesman or promotional expert.

More to college than studying

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Suddenly — there is housekeeping, when young people go off to college.

After the tuition, board and room have been paid and the last few cents have been squeezed from the parents' exchequer for clothes, somebody remembers a wardrobe of cleaning aids and tools. About that time may come a foot-long list from the student dormitory advisory committee or whatever, suggesting cleaning aids needed by freshmen.

The list may include broom, mop, wax, polish, iron, window cleaner, brushes, sewing aids and so on, if it runs true to form.

Prodded by the reminder, most mothers will throw in vitamin pills, nose drops and other medication a daughter or son may need occasionally. Following this plan you can whittle away a $100 bill faster than you can say broke.

Chances are that Johnny and Mary will cart these cleaning accessories across the land to their dorms, and in spring it may all be brought home (or left there) — including the unused vitamin pills, many colored threads, buttons and so on.

The silliness of this expense has been shared by two people — your student and his rommate, who also has traveled with mop, pail, ad infinitum. How many cleaning aids are required to clean one small room anyway?

It is far easier to provide the student with enough money to purchase what he will need to keep the room clean after he determines the situation. Practically the first thing he will do is seek a grocery store, anyway.

The best investment might be a small vacuum cleaner. If parents need a new one, pass on the old to the student. Or buy an inexpensive electric broom or vacuum with cleaning accessories, and show the student how to make cleaning a room less of a chore. He may be able to rent out the vacuum when it is not in use.

One second-year student found that it was far easier to vacuum her room once a week, using the various accessories for cleaning walls, windows and shelves than to try to keep the room clean with individual tools.

A BIG PROBLEM in dormitories is crumbs, this student explained. They are ground into everything — mattresses, rugs, carpets, bed throws, sheets. A broom is a wonderful cleaning tool, but it is difficult to manipulate in a room crowded with beds, desks, bureaus and so on. Then, too, crumbs find their way into unlikely places such as the corners of clothes closets and drawers.

THE UNKEMPT look in dorms may not be the fault of students. The best endowed schools set a poor example in cleanliness. In spite of rules about cooking in rooms and assessment threats for damaging walls — one student received a post-season bill for $1.85 for putting a nail in the wall — the halls and stairs of some student dormitories are filthy even at the start of the year.

One parent was shocked when he walked up the stairs of his son's dorm on the first day of school. Stairs and hallway walls were filthy with grime, stains and graffiti. Some of it looked years old. Those stairs would be used by students on that second floor more than the elevators. In fact the room was dusty and dreary and had not even been painted over the summer. It is a good way to promote slovenliness.

Lots of students would welcome the chance to give the hallways and rooms of their building a good scrubbing or painting for the few cents they might earn. For the most penny-pinching college president, this refurbishing might provide a double-whanny — cleanliness and beneficence — and better care of the dormitory room by the student.

Nitschke retires after 15 seasons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ray Nitschke's eyes were filled with tears. He had lost the battle with age—a more determined foe than any lineman he had faced in his 15-year National Football League career.

"There's no room on the Packer squad for three middle linebackers," he said, "so I'm retiring."

There was only one regret for the 36-year-old veteran, "...that I can't turn the clock back to 1958 and become a Packer all over again."

His voice wavered, his eyes grew more moist.

"The spirit's still there, but the numbers game got to me.

His expression was nothing new. The brash insistence of Time that aging stars leave the game they love has claimed untold numbers of veteran players.

"I've been prepared for this for the last month or so—even when camp started," Nitschke said. "But I wanted to be prepared to help out if I was needed ... if they called on me."

The call never came. Packer coaches had to concern themselves with Jim Carter, Nitschke's replacement since 1971. The fact that Nitschke had anchored Green Bay defenses through five championship seasons and two Super Bowl crowns just couldn't stop the clock.

There was another, less emotional, departure from pro football Tuesday—that of running back John Riggins from the New York Jets' camp. Riggins, who had been holding out for over $100,000 after gaining 944 yards and being voted the club's Most Valuable Player last season, returned to his Centralia, Kan. home after contract negotiations failed.

"I went for all the marbles," he said. "It was all or none. The way I see it now, I don't think I'll be back."

Meanwhile, things were returning to normal at other NFL camps after wholesale cuts Monday brought rosters down to the 49-man limit.

The Minnesota Vikings traded wide receiver Gene Washington to the Denver Broncos in exchange for wide receiver Rod Sherman and an undisclosed draft choice.

Washington, 28, is a seven-year veteran and a former first round draft choice. His career statistics include 172 receptions for 3,087 yards, but a foot injury has bothered him the last two seasons. A former hurdler at Michigan State, Washington's best year came in 1968 when he caught 46 passes for 756 yards.

Sherman, who has played with the Oakland Raiders, Cincinnati Bengals, then Oakland again before being acquired by Denver, has caught 104 passes for 1,558 yards.

Newly named head coach John North of New Orleans made it clear that he won't be transforming the Saints, 2-11-1 last year, into immediate winners.

"I think it's going to take a little time, but we will get it going," he said on his first day as head man.

TWO-FISTED CHRIS — Chris Evert holds racket with both hands returning a ball to Veronica Burton, of Great Britain, in their singles match of the Wightman Cup tournament at Brookline, Mass. Miss Evert won the match 6-3, 6-0, to lead the U.S. team to its fifth straight tennis championship.

Pony coaches clinic slated

A clinic for coaches and other officials in the Washington C.H. Pony Football League will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Washington Senior High School band room.

Daryl Stewart, commissioner of the Pony Football League, said the clinic will be conducted by the Washington C.H. football coaching staff.

Head coach Maurice Pfeifer and his staff of assistants will discuss basic football rules in addition to their coaching philosophies.

Oliver's homer sets tempo for Bucs' win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You must be kidding. Al Oliver with an inferiority complex? But there it was.

Long known for his swaggering confidence, the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder admitted Tuesday night that he's a "hit-and-hope" hitter.

"I hit and hope for the best," said Oliver after hitting a home run to start the Pirates to an 8-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Oliver, who usually boasts that he's the "greatest" and exudes immodest self-assurance, was not so positive Tuesday night despite the big blow.

"I'm not a home run hitter," said Oliver. "I'm a hard-luck hitter. If I was paid for line drives, I'd be the first million dollar player in baseball.

"I was just glad the homer got us going."

The homer not only got the Pirates going, it kept them coming in the National League East race. They kept the pressure on front-running St. Louis and remained two games behind as the Cardinals beat the Houston Astros 8-3.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the San Francisco Giants 1-0; the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos 6-1; the New York Mets turned back the San Diego Padres 8-6, and the Chicago Cubs trimoed the Atlanta Braves 9-6.

Cardinals 8, Astros 3

Lou Brock's two-run single keyed a four-run St. Louis fourth inning and lifted the Cardinals to an 8-3 decision over Houston.

The Cards trailed 3-0 going into the inning after Houston's Bob Gallagher hit a two-run double and John Edwards a run-producing single in the second inning.

Phillies 1, Giants 0

Bill Robinson's seventh home run in the last 10 games backed Wayne Twitchell's four-hitter in Philadelphia's 1-0 success over San Francisco.

Dodgers 6, Expos 1.

Steve Garvey's home run keyed a two-run rally in the fourth inning that started Claude Osteen and Los Angeles to a 6-1 decision over Montreal. After Garvey's home run tied the game 1-1, the dodgers scored the tie-breaking run on singles by Willie Crawford, Bill Russell and Ron Cey.

Mets 8, Padres 6

Wayne Garrett's 10th homer of the year broke a sixth-inning tie and triggered a five-run rally that carried New York over San Diego 8-6. Winner Jon Matlack survived a two-run rally by San Diego in the first.

Cubs 9, Braves 6

Henry Aaron smashed his 706th career homer and knocked in four runs, but Chicago rallied for three runs in the eighth and two more in the ninth to beat Atlanta 9-6. Aaron's three-run shot in the first inning put him within eight homers of Babe Ruth's monumental record of 714. The Atlanta star has had 33 so far this season.

Bengals practice shortened by heat

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals were scheduled to continue adding running and passing plays to their offense today in preparation for Saturday night's preseason NFL game with the Atlanta Falcons.

Coach Paul Brown cut practice short Tuesday because of the high humidity and 90-degree weather.

16 ready for Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — A field of 16 finely-tuned 3-year-old trotters was set today for the record $144,710 Hambletonian, the premier event in harness racing.

A heat wave that for three days has sent temperatures into the upper 90s was due to continue with no rain in sight.

Despite the sweltering, humid conditions, a crowd of more than 16,000 was expected and another 30,000 on the grounds of the gaily festooned Du Quoin State Fair.

It was sport for sport's sake in this rural American setting where parimutuel wagering is prohibited.

The horse winning two heats bags the $72,355 top prize as well as the prestige unmeasured in future money value.

The heats will be trotted on a clay mile oval. The second heat will follow the first by about one hour, and a third, if necessary, will be held another hour later.

Knightly Way, piloted by John Simpson Jr., was the unofficial favorite in quest of his ninth victory in 10 starts this season. He has not raced since suffering an injured shoulder in his stall at Springfield, Ill., two weeks ago.

Second choice was Arnie Almahurst, driven by Gene Riegle. Arnie, drawing the No. 1 post, progressed sensationally the last two weeks after breaking six times in nine previous starts.

Although a slow starter, he rallied and won the Review Futurity at Springfield and the Futurity at Indianapolis in straight heats.

Others in the field and their drivers were: Placate, Jimmy Arthur; Flirth, Ralph Baldwin; Fairmont Hanover, Del Miller; Florinda, Joe O'Brien; Honeysuckle Rose, Vernon Dancer; South Bend, Howard Boissinger; MacArthur, Mike Zeller; Chaco, Bruce Nickells; Keystone Lord, Billy Haughton; Noble Jade, Del Insko; Imperial Yankee, Billy Haughton; Lucky Hill, Max Lynch; Feticil, Herve Filion, and Keystone Wart, Cecil Champion.

Haughton is listed driver for both Keystone Lord and Imperial Yankee, and must make a choice with another driver to be named.

Big 10 teams hope to elbow powers from grid spotlight

CHICAGO (AP) — This may be the college football season when the Big Ten Conference finally elbows the Big Eight out of the national spotlight.

For the Big Ten, co-defending champions Ohio State and Michigan appear capable of dislodging the Big Eight's perennial standouts, Nebraska and Oklahoma, from their customary lofty role in the national rankings.

For many seasons, the Big Eight has outshone the Big Ten as the kingpin conference in the Midwest, but this is a campaign of Big Eight flux over-all and one of pennance for titleshorn Oklahoma.

With new coaches, and minus recent superstars, Nebraska and Oklahoma still rate highly in the Big Eight race. But no matter its ultimate success, Oklahoma is condemned to a wallflower role when the post-season bowl games are played.

The Big Eight recently punished Oklahoma for recruiting sins, banning the Sooners from post-season play for 1973 and 1974, and defaulting the Sooners' 1972 title to runner-up Nebraska.

However, the chastisement didn't erase the Nov. 23 national TV showing of the probable title battle between Oklahoma and Nebraska at Norman, Okla.

That is one day before the Nov. 24 Big Ten finale between Ohio State and Michigan which seems destined, as it has for five previous season windups between these rivals, to resolve the conference championship and the Rose Bowl assignment.

The Midwest's prime independent, Notre Dame, is considered capable of clawing back into the nation's top 10, although the scars may not be healed from the 40-6 Orange Bowl drubbing the Fighting Irish took from Nebraska.

In the Missouri Valley Conference, the title battle again appears to center among last season's tri-champs—West Texas State, Louisville and Drake, with West Texas State slightly favored and Tulsa an outside threat.

Mid-American Conference power is concentrated among defending champion Kent State, Bowling Green (Ohio), Miami (Ohio) and Ohio University, which also will be traveling against such fast outside company as Penn State, South Carolina and Northwestern.

The Mid-American membership has swelled to 10 with the addition of Northern Illinois and Ball State. But those two schools and Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan are not yet booked into the title race.

NL ruling restores Tolan to Cincy's active roster

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Outfielder Bobby Tolan won reinstatement to the Cincinnati Reds from the disabled list, but he was no where to be found.

When he shows up again, Manager Sparky Anderson indicated he won't play. Rookie Ken Griffey, called up Friday from Indianapolis had two hits each in his first three games and stole one base in the Reds losing effort to Pittsburgh Tuesday 8-3.

"Griffey has earned the right," said Anderson. "He did it on his own. He has shown he can play—and run."

As for Tolan, all Anderson said was: "He's back on the club." Then he added, he'd use Tolan as he "sees fit."

National League President Chub Feeney and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ruled before gametime that Tolan could not be placed on the 15-day disabled list because he didn't meet the requirements.

The Reds announced Saturday that Tolan was placed on the list because of a back ailment. Griffey and Ted Armbrister were called up, one of them replacing Tolan and the other substituting for pitcher Roger Nelson.

The Reds, following the league ruling, sent Armbrister back.

Tolan, meanwhile, was fined $350 by the Reds who said he cursed player personnel director Sheldon Bender and failed to report twice for physical examinations.

Tolan filed a grievance with the Major League Professional Ballplayers Association in New York. He disputed the fines and charged the Reds were using the disability list to discipline him.

Monday, Tolan took a physical and team physician Dr. George Ballou pronounced him fit to play. The league ruling followed the next day.

The pronouncement made Tolan eligible to play Tuesday night but he was not at Riverfront Stadium nor at his home.

Fans met the announcement of Tolan's reinstatement and a statement by Reds General Manager during the game with a chorus of boos.

Howsam, who was on the West Coast, said in the statement that, "This allows the Reds to use Tolan effective tonight. This pleases us because he won't be lost to the club for 15 days. It naturally strengthens our club to have Tolan return with his back healthy. With Bobby back on the roster, he will have a chance to win a pennant."

Rupp takes orders from female board

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Adolph Rupp says he doesn't think he'll have any trouble taking orders from the woman who heads the Kentucky Colonels board of directors.

"I think I can take it," the former University of Kentucky basketball coach said Tuesday after his appointment as vicechairman of the otherwise all-female board was announced at a news conference. "It's gonna be interesting to sit here and be the only man and take orders from a bunch of girls."

Hayes said the senior signal caller threw the football the best he has in his college career.

Joe Hawk returns with Legion contender

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Joe Hawk, the grand old man of amateur baseball, is back.

The 68-year-old builder of baseball champions has qualified Cincinnati's famed Bentley Post for a bid at an unprecedented sixth national title in the American Legion Little World Series at Lewiston, Idaho, this week.

Hawk, whose Bentley clubs have won 19 state titles in his three decades of coaching, is considered the nation's winningest legion baseball coach.

Catholics win tourney debut

The St. Colman's Knights of Columbus slo-pitch softball team opened the annual church league tournament in style Tuesday night by handing Good Shepherd Lutheran a 14-3 setback at Eyman Park.

Danny Mahoney sparked the 18-hit attack with two home runs, a triple in five trips while Chris Shaper added a double and a single. Phil Bihl and Dick Smith also had homers. Larry Johnson was the winning pitcher.

The Catholics will meet the winner of the First Baptist-Good Hope Methodist game at 7 p.m. Friday.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

A top-notch declarer takes every possibility tinto consideration. Delicate refinements of play do occasionally arise, and the mark of a fine declarer is that he manages to apply them effectively to the task at hand.

West led a club, won by the ace, and declarer finessed the queen of spades, on which West played the nine. When declarer continued with the jack, East covered with the king, South winning with the ace as West showed out.

South still had the 10-7-3 over East's 8-6 and, in order to avoid a trump loser, he returned to dummy with a low diamond to the jack in order to lead the four of trumps. When East covered with the six, South finessed the seven and drew East's last trump with the ten.

Declarer would now have been on Easy Street had he found the diamonds divided 3-2, but when he led the ace East showed out and West's remaining 10-7 prevented him from running the suit.

South was therefore obliged to overtake the queen with the king in order to lead a heart from dummy. However, West showed up with the A-Q and South went down one.

But he should have made the hand. After the trump situation became exposed, he should have realized he was subject to a 4-1 diamond break and taken steps to guard against that possibility.

Instead of leading the six of diamonds to the jack, he should have led the queen to the king. Then, after drawing trumps, he could play the ace and another diamond, taking the proven finesse and finishing with eleven tricks instead of nine.

The queen is played to the king not to display an abundance of resources, nor for histrionic effect, but to cover the specific possibility of West's having four diamonds to the ten.

Pot Smokers Are Shameless

Did you see the pictures of the students at a college flaunt their marijuana smoking in the faces of authorities?

Can you imagine that such indecent behavior would be tolerated?

Mr. K.R.B., Iowa

Dear Mr. B.:

Yes, I did see that aggressive display of rebellion and the flagrant violation of the existing laws.

Fortunately the legislative and health authorities in Michigan wisely repealed and revoked the given or implied permission to legally indulge in marijuana smoking. The nation salutes them.

The horrendous portrait of a group of teenagers and young adults playing the role of pseudosophisticated, liberated moderns highlighted the need for education about marijuana.

It emphasized the massive dangers implicit in the drive to have marijuana legalized. Unbridled freedom given to those who are totally ignorant of the hazards of this drug exposes them to limitless physical and emotional danger.

How many of those pictured smoking at a football game really cared about the game, the college spirit or the wholesome attitudes associated with it?

I deliberately ask that question to encourage the obvious and specious argument raised about adults drinking alcohol at their college reunions.

There is no logical relationship between the two. If youngsters really and sincerely have a sense of social consciousness, their job is to discourage all overindulgence in alcohol. Instead youngsters take it as an added right for them to compound an error and embark on a treacherous pathway to even more dangerous drug involvement.

Neither of these drugs, alcohol or marijuana, can eventually add to their collegiate and post-college accomplishments.

When I speak of the hazards of marijuana, I refer only indirectly to the danger of graduating from this drug to harder drugs and eventually being trapped by the ghostliness of drug addication.

As a doctor, I have been exposed to the question that many high school and college students regularly ask: "Do you mean to tell me that all people who smoke marijuana eventually become drug addicts?"

The answer is "no" and the trap of that question is obvious. However, let me emphasize, reemphasize, and imprint into the consciousness of everyone that in a large penal institution devoted to hard drug addicts, more than 95 per cent of all those incarcerated began their journey to destruction with "playful pot smoking."

Another argument borne of an effort to get adults to condone "grass" smoking is: "It is no more dangerous than cigarettes."

Wrong again! Cigarette smoking is undoubtedly a massive threat to health. Medical studies have supported this without any question. How many marijuana smokers are aware of the scientific proof that is accumulating about neurotic behavior, genetic disturbances, accidents and deaths due to impaired reflexes, inability to reason, and actual physical damage to brain cells? In the light of this undeniable evidence, what more unrealistic arguments will be foolishly created?

Licking-Knox flood meet to be held

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Newark city officials planned to talk with representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and state officials later this week to clear up confusion over a major flood protection project on the Licking-Knox county line.

The project, in the planning stages for several months, involves dredging and deepening the channel of the Licking River and creating a diversionary ditch for one of its tributaries.

The Ohio Natural Resources Department sent a letter to the engineers saying that the department would have to consider the projects separately before funding could be approved.

The corps said the letter meant the state was dropping its support of the project.

Newark Mayor Richard Baker received a copy of a letter Monday sent from the Army engineers to the resources department expressing concern over the state withdrawing its support of the project.

The three sides are to get together by telephone this week to discuss the matter. Original plans call for the project to begin in 1975.

Physician plans appeal of order

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The attorney for a Mansfield physician suspended from practice Aug. 15 said Monday that he'll go to court to appeal the decision of the Ohio State Medical Board.

The board issued the judgment against Dr. Gordon F. Morkel after a Mansfield man charged that he was billed for services which the physician did not perform.

Hostages freed, gunmen yield

STOCKHOLM (AP) — "Don't hurt them—they didn't harm us," two women hostages cried as police Tuesday night seized the pair of gunmen who had held four people for 132 hours in a Stockholm bank.

"We never felt the boys were a threat to our lives," 21-year-old Kristin Enmark told a newsman. "We were scared that the police would do something that would force them to turn desperate."

The two convicts—safecracker Jan-Erik Olsson, 32, and life-term murderer Clark Olofsson, 26—surrendered after police pumped tear gas into the bank vault in which they were holding three women and a man prisoner.

There was no bloodshed, and doctors at the hospital to which the hostages were taken said their condition was "good under the circumstances."

Miss Enmark denied reports that one of the other two women had been raped repeatedly.

"None of them did anything to us," she told newsmen who interviewed her in Sabbatsberg Hospital.

Olsson seized the four bank employes last Thursday when police surprised him as he was robbing the main office of the Kreditbanken.

An escaped convict, he demanded that Olofsson be brought to the bank and that they be given $650,000 in ransom and safe conduct out of the country. The government agreed but would not let them go when Olsson insisted on taking two of the hostages with him for insurance.

The convicts had the run of the bank for two days, but police trapped them and their captives Saturday in the 40-by-19-foot vault.

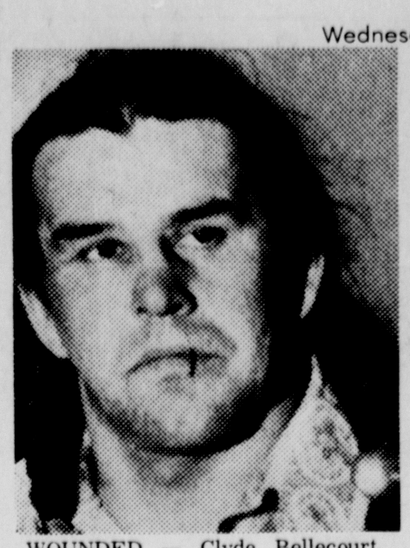

Early Tuesday evening, the police suddenly cut off the lights in the vault and pumped tear gas through holes they had drilled. Olsson fired a burst from his submachine gun and then gave up.

"Shortly after the gas was pumped into the vault, I heard cries from the girls and the door was opened," Detective Inspector Karl Gunnar Aastroem said. He said Olofsson shouted, "We surrender."

"He seemed to be fit," Aastroem continued. "I put the handcuffs around his wrists and took him away. Olsson did not put up any resistance either. Both appeared to be suffering from the gas."

"I couldn't imagine that it would work so so smoothly," said Police Supt. Sven Thomander. "I got damned scared when I noticed we had pumped in too small an amount of gas. We closed the door again and pumped in more gas."

There were two casualties in the six-day siege, a policeman shot in the hand during Olsson's robbery attempt on Thursday and another policeman hit in the hand and the jaw when Olsson fired through one of the holes in the ceiling of the vault on Tuesday.

WOUNDED — Clyde Bellecourt, above, a leader in the American Indian Movement, was shot and critically wounded on the Rosebud Indian Reservation in South Dakota. Authorities said Bellecourt, 36, was shot in the yard of a home north of Rosebud. Carter Camp, president of the American Indian Movement, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting after he surrendered.

Light damage is listed in 3 mishaps

Three minor traffic accidents were reported to the police and sheriff's departments.

William A. Lankford, 25, of 419 East St., was charged with reckless operation by the sheriff's department when he failed to negotiate a curve on U.S. 62 shortly after midnight. There was little damage to the pole or vehicle.

Lizzie B. Angel, 57, of Greenfield, was backing out of a parking space on S. Main Street when she bumped the vehicle parked in the adjacent space. The other car is owned by Larry Walker, 445 Broadway.

George K. Magg, 18, of 407 Fifth St., was turning into a driveway on S. Elm Street when his vehicle was struck by a car driven by Brian K. Haines, 1030 S. Hinde St., which had been immediately behind it. Haines, who was alone and had only a temporary permit to drive, was cited by the police for driving without a license.

City Council schedules special session

A special meeting of Washington City Council has been called for 7 p.m. today by Billie Wilson, chairman. Tonight's session will take the place of the regular meeting scheduled for Sept. 12 which has been canceled.

Six ordinances are on the agenda for the meeting tonight, including three for the renewal of notes, and two ordinances which received tentative approval on the first reading last week.

Another ordinance to be presented is for the approval of a "Best Efforts" agreement with Cor Tec, Inc., of Auburn, Wash. The company plans to establish a factory in Washington C.H.

The note renewal ordinances pertain to a street resurfacing project, and the construction of the North Street bridge.

Ordinances to be presented on the second reading authorize the city manager to enter a contract with Mai Kai Hot-Mix, Inc., to resurface city streets, and designate public depositories.

City Manager Dan Wolford plans to ask Council for authorization to purchase and place a traffic signal at the intersection of Cedar and Elm streets.

Police check bat bite, burglary

While on a routine check of buildings Tuesday night a city patrolman found that a vending machine at the Certified service station, Dayton Avenue, had been pried open. The owner was contacted and he said that the money was removed each evening. All that was missing was four cans of soft drink.

Carol Patrick, of Praire Road, reported to police that she may have been bitten by a bat. After receiving what felt like an insect sting, Miss Patrick, saw a bat in the room. The bat was killed and taken for examaination to determine whether or not it had rabies. No marks were visible.

Ohio Assembly passes ethics, wage bills; adjourns

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 110th Ohio General Assembly ground out passage of major bills on minimum wage, unemployment compensation, and code of ethics for public officials, then adjourned late Tuesday night until Jan. 2, 1974.

Final roll calls just before midnight ended an eight-month session of the lawmakers—the first of two regular sessions in the state's current 1973-1975 biennium. Skeleton sessions will be held Sept. 11 for bill signings and other bookkeeping business.

The major highlights of the final day included acceptance by the Senate and House of a joint conference committee report providing for a code of ethics for lawmakers, state and local officials, and judges throughout the state.

Its main feature, as advocated by Gov. John J. Gilligan, requires all but local lower eschelon officials throughout the state to file annual reports listing the sources of their incomes. Various ethics commissions established by the measure could take disciplinary actions in cases of conflicts of interest, including removal from office.

The House vote on the conference committee report was 88-1 with Rep. Ray Luther, R-1 Newark—who claimed the bill was not strong enough—casting the only dissenting vote. The Senate vote was 27-4.

Gilligan, who termed the code of ethics bill his top legislative priority, was quoted as saying he will sign the bill into law. Some backers said it will give Ohio the toughest conflict of interest law in the nation.

The Senate amended and added its approval and the House concurred in the changes in a House bill setting an Ohio minimum wage law of $1.60 an hour for most jobs and $1.30 for agricultural work. The present law provides minimums as low as 55 cents for waitresses and others ranging up to a top of $1.25.

Both houses accepted a conference committee report that completed passage of another administration bill hiking unemployment compensation benefits and easing them on fluctuations in the statewide average weekly wage.

In other action, the legislature passed and sent to the governor a bill providing that members of the new State Lottery Commission be paid a salary of $5,000 a year. An earlier bill creating the commission provided that members would be reimbursed only for actual expenses.

Another measure that would have inserted into an earlier pay raise bill a salary hike for the assistant majority floor leader of the House also died in the Rules Committee. The previous bill raising the pay of legislators and other leaders of the House and Senate omitted the assistant majority leader.

Chairman Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, of the House Judiciary Committee said the bill was allowed to die after he learned some Republicans would attempt to delete all lawmakers from the bill if it made another appearance on the floor.

The bill that raised the pay of senators and House members from $14,000 to $17,500 a year passed by only a few votes and Wilkowski indicated he did not want to see the entire issued reopened.

Earlier, the legislature completed passage of bills to:

—Exempt an estimated 4,000 Ohio real estate salesmen licensed between Oct. 12, 1971, and Jan. 2, 1972, from a newly enacted requirement for 60 hours of educational training, including testing.

—Outlaw discrimination in employment on the basis of sex, with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission given enforcement powers.

—Provide an increase of $2 to $10 a month in the pensions of about 25,000 retired public employes who left active service between June 30, 1968 and July 1, 1972.

—Make a correction in the two-year appropriations bill that would have cost the University of Cincinnati about $800,000 a year by requiring it to reduce previously established student fees.

—Equalize the pay of public officials by allowing them to receive salary increases voted during their terms of office. This proposal would go before voters in May 1974 in the form of a constitutional amendment.

—Authorize payroll deductions for consenting professional school employes as donations to political parties of their choice.

—Rescind the authority of juvenile courts to commit 16 and 17-year-olds to adult correctional institutions.

—Allows public employes to accumulate vacation time for a period of three years instead of the present two years.

—Prohibits legal proceedings to recover pay raises given to municipal judges after they were held not to be covered by a constitutional amendment permitting other judges to receive in-term salary hikes.

—Establishes a hemophilia program in the Ohio Department of Health.

At the last minute, the Senate rejected a conference committee report on a bill to pay sundry claims against the state which cannot be sued. Sponsors said the measure would have to be reintroduced at the 1974 session. The bill contains claims totaling about $600,000.

Rains hamper hunt for quake survivors

Mexican toll passes 600

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Torrential rains drenched rescue workers in some parts of southeast Mexico today as they searched for bodies or trapped survivors from the worst earthquake in modern Mexican history.

The rains added to an already serious flood problem and drove more people from their homes.

Late figures from the quake areas 120 to 220 miles south and east of Mexico City indicated more than 600 persons perished in the devastating earth shock at 3:51 a.m. Tuesday.

It was the highest death toll of an earthquake in Mexico since the keeping of such records started in the early 1900s.

President Luis Echeverria scheduled a bus tour of the devastated area today.

The quake, coming during the worst rainy season in 30 years, extended a disaster area that already covered much of central Mexico. Seventy-six persons have died in floods in the past month, the homes of more than 400,000 have been damaged and millions of dollars worth of crops have been ruined.

The earthquake, which registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, struck at least 24 cities, towns and villages along the Sierra Madre range in the states of Puebla and Veracruz.

In Richter measurements, an earthquake of 7.0 is 10 times more severe than one of 6.0, which is 10 times greater than one of 5.0. That is because the Richter scale measures wave magnitudes and not something like an increase in automobile speed from 60 to 70 miles per hour.

Huge cracks opened in the earth in Puebla state, into which homes and other buildings tumbled. The craters spouted dust for hours, until afternoon rains damped it.

Ciudad Serdan, 170 miles east of Mexico City, appeared to be in the center of the area hit hardest. The police duty officer in the city reported early today that between 300 and 400 persons were dead in the city of 22,000 people and its adjacent villages.

In Orizaba, a center of the brewing industry, 80 deaths were reported, most of them in the collapse of a five-story building in which 20 families lived.

Twenty-four hours after the quake the exact toll was not known because many small villages along the edge of the extinct Pico de Orizaba volcano were still isolated.

The government reported 393 confirmed dead in the state of Puebla and 92 in Veracruz state. But later reports from both areas added another 17 deaths.

The worst previous earthquake in modern Mexico occurred July 28, 1957, when about 70 people were killed, more than 50 of them in Mexico City. This time the capital was not seriously affected.

There were no reports of foreigners being injured and Acapulco, the tourist resort on the Pacific coast, barely felt the tremor.

EXPRESSWAY PILEUP — Two tractor trailer rigs and two smaller trucks were involved in a pileup on I-255 near Memphis, Tenn., leaving one dead and at least four others injured. Removal of debris took hours and left thousands of cars backed up in mammoth traffic jam. (AP Wirephoto)

Ohio ethics law strongest in U.S.?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Approval by Gov. John J. Gilligan of a newly-approved code of ethics bill will give Ohio the finest legislation of its kind in the nation, a veteran state lawmaker says.

Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, gave that evaluation Tuesday night after the House and Senate approved a joint conference committee report and sent the bill to the governor.

Fry, although a minority member of the House, helped corral GOP votes for the Democratic measure which requires public officials throughout the state—from the statehouse to county courthouses and city halls—to make annual reports on their sources of income.

Failure to do so could lead to their removal from office.

Gilligan, who already requires financial disclosure by employes of the executive department, is reported ready to sign the measure although it is considerably weaker than the bill he submitted to the lawmakers eight months ago. He called it his "No. 1 legislative priority."

Gilligan requires his cabinet members and others in the executive department to disclose not only the sources of income, but also the amounts of their incomes. Gilligan makes his disclosures annually.

Fry, a four-term member of the House and also a former state senator, fought for about seven years to get the legislature to go along with a bill he said was needed to restore and preserve public confidence in their elected officials.

As some Democratic members complained the bill was too weak, Fry pointed out its provisions go much further than ethics laws in other states. He noted it includes judges and elected city and county officials in addition to state lawmakers and appointed officials. "This will give Ohio the finest law in the nation," he said.

The bill sets up four separate ethics commissions to receive the annual financial reports— not only from incumbents seeking re-election but also from their opponents—and empowers each group to take disciplinary actions including removal from office for violators.

JUST TRY to imagine the confusion at the Albert Ellenberger home, 2661 Capps Rd., every morning . . . The Ellenbergers have eight children and they attend seven different schools in the Miami Trace District . . . Two leave first on the same bus at 7 a.m. and get back home about 3:30 p.m. . . . Five more leave together on another bus at 8:45 a.m. and return about 5 p.m. . . . The eighth and last leaves about the same time to drive his own car to Laurel Oaks Vocational School near Wilmington . . .

For the present, Mrs. Ellenberger has some difficulty keeping track of her brood, especially in the morning when she checks on each one to make certain they all have the right books and clothes . . . After they all have gone, Mrs. Ellenberger said "I feel like taking a nerve pill and relaxing with a cup of coffee" . . .

Mrs. June Slaughter, the elementary school supervisor, couldn't say enough in praise to Mrs. Ellenberger . . . She said: "She is the most understanding and cooperative mother I can imagine, always pleasant and never complains" . . . Not all mothers are, she added . . .

Some of the Ellenberger youngsters ride the bus as much as 15 miles to school from their home in Perry Township . . . Power reduced

Heat wave bakes nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sizzling heat wave baked the eastern third of the nation today with little hope of relief for several more days.

A hot and humid air mass over New England was blamed Tuesday for conditions which caused a tornado to strike West Stockbridge, Mass., where four persons were killed, 31 injured and high property damage sustained.

The tornado leveled a threebuilding truck stop in West Stockbridge and damaged six homes.

The hot, humid air also caused lightning storms in Maine and Vermont. Two persons were killed in a fire in Warren, Vt., which authorities believe was started by lightning. A house and church in West Mills, Maine, were destroyed by fire, sparked by a bolt.

Electrical power failed Tuesday evening in parts of the Cleveland, Ohio, area, cutting power to 15,000 homes.

Relief from the heat was a major preoccupation in many of the nation's cities.

It was 104 at Phoenix Tuesday; 101 in Baltimore; 100 at Redwood Falls, Minn., and Sioux Falls, S.D.; 100 at Harrisburg, Pa.; 98 at New York City, and 95 at Atlantic City, N.J.

After dark, the thermometer settled back into the 70s and 80s, waiting for another lunge at temperature records today.

Thundershowers dotted the map at various locations including the western portion of the central Plains, parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Florida and the lower Mississippi Valley. Rainfall was generally less than an inch.

Cloudiness and fog rolled over parts of Oregon, Washington and Southern California and fog settled over the Ohio Valley and Appalachians. Gale warnings were posted along the extreme northern California coast.

Cold air moving slowly through the Plains states was expected to become stationary and weak, providing little relief.

The New York State Power Pool and other systems were forced to reduce voltage Tuesday when temperatures in the mid to upper 90s caused massive consumption of electricity by air conditioners. Some power failures were reported.

Auto companies closed down several Midwestern plants because of the heat wave, while some 750 sweltering workers at two other plants simply walked off their jobs.

New York City suffered through a year-high temperature of 98 degrees as Consolidated Edison reported a record power demand of 8,161 megawatts. The temperature-humidity index hit 85, which a spokesman for the National Weather Service said meant "utter misery."

In Washington, the temperature reached 97 degrees and the capital's metropolitan area was under an air pollution alert for the 17th day this summer. Hot, stagnant air holding pollution over the area was not expected to dissipate before Friday.

A spokesman for the Virginia Electric & Power Co. in Richmond said the utility had an all-time high power demand of 7,100 megawatts on Tuesday.

In the Detroit area, where the temperature reached 96 degrees, union officials prodded Chrysler Corp. into closing its engine and assembly plants in Warren, Mich., and Windsor, Ont., sending 4,700 workers home.

American Motors decided to close down its Kenosha assembly and Milwaukee body plants in Wisconsin as well as a jeep facility in Toledo, Ohio.

At Chrysler truck plants in Windsor and Warren, workers took their own emergency measures and walked out, forcing the plants to close.

At Ford Motor Co.'s Dearborn, Mich., assembly plant, many employes failed to return from breaks, forcing the plant to close after two hours. Some 2,300 workers went home early.

Council may rule in week on automobile price hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council may decide within a week whether to grant Phase 4 price increases sought by the nation's big four automakers, a council spokesman says.

The spokesman said the council would rule shortly because of the considerable publicity surrounding the requests and because a public hearing had been held.

Representatives of both Ford and GM said they would take a "hard look" at the situation for competitive reasons.

This raised the possibility that the council might trim the Ford and GM requests.

Representatives of all four automakers indicated to the council that they would probably seek additional price increases shortly to cover higher labor and materials costs.

Henry W. Welch, vice president for finance of General Motors, said GM has not had a price increase to cover material or wage costs since December 1971, although such costs have increased $92 per vehicle on the average.

The increases now under consideration, the automakers say, are to recover the cost of government-mandated safety and antipollution equipment on 1974 models, including improvements for bumpers, seat belts and roofs.

Kenneth C. Merrill, comptroller for Ford's North American automotive operations, questioned whether "these price adjustments should be considered price increases at all, because the products are changed to give benefits to the customer that are at least equal to the costs."

That view was challenged by the only hearing witness who did not represent the automotive industry, Peter J. Petkas of the Corporate Accountability Research Group, a Ralph Nader-affiliated group.

"The mere fact that safety and emission control standards are federally mandated is no justification for unquestioningly passing their cost on to the consumer," he said.

Beef scarcity nearing end

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scarcity of beef in the supermarkets may be nearing an end, according to an Agriculture Department spokesman.

"There seems to be a little buildup under way," he said.

"Earlier this month we had verified that 70 packing houses were closed. By early this week we estimated that fewer than 50 were still closed," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

Price controls for all foods except beef were removed July 18. The lid on beef is scheduled to be removed Sept. 12.

Murder case testimony continues

Testimony in the trial of John Allen Brown, 21 of Frankfort, charged with the April 13 second degree murder of a Chillicothe girl, continued Tuesday with the calling of Lester Sanders, who was with the defendant throughout the evening. Several law enforcement officers also testified.

Brown is accused of shooting Demeatris Winfield, 17. The girl died of a gunshot wound at the home of Leonard Kelley, 721 Gregg St., shortly before 4 a.m. on Friday, April 13.

The trial was delayed this morning when the court was unable to locate the key to an office containing evidence previously introduced.

Sanders had an extensive lapse of memory when called to the stand. He remembered having taken the gun from the Gregg Street residence, scene of the shooting, and burying it, but failed to recall where he had gotten the gun, or where he had hidden it.

Sanders stated that he met Brown, along with Steve Robinson and Leonard Kelley, at Kelley's home, 721 Gregg St., on the evening of April 12. There they drank beer and listened to record albums, he said.

He testified that the group later went to Chillicothe, returning in the early morning hours of April 13. In response to questions about other places the group may have gone that night, Sanders indicated that they had been no where else.

His testimony contradicted that offered by Robinson on Monday. Robinson had stated that the group went to Wilmington College prior to leaving for Chillicothe. It had been at the college that Brown had taken LSD, according to Robinson.

Patrolman Larry Hott, of the Washington Police Department, testified about the search which uncovered the gun buried about 500 feet from the scene of shooting.

The Rev. Keith Wooley and Ptl. Bill Robinson who had taken the girl's body to Columbus for an autopsy, also testified Tuesday.

Two agents from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation reported that tests on the gun and bullet showed the bullet had been fired from the gun. They further testified that tests given the defendant revealed nitrates on Brown's right hand. Nitrates are a part of the residue of gunpowder which are

Syrian plotters are executed

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Syrian secret police have secretly executed 42 army officers following an abortive attempt to assassinate President Hafez Assad, foreign diplomats in the Syrian capital report.

Syrian informants said 60 or so officers had disappeared after being arrested by the secret police, which is headed by Assad's brother, Col. Rifaat Assad.

The diplomats said the president was ambushed on July 12 as he was touring northern Syria. His car was riddled by bullets, and a report published in Beirut a week after said he was shot in the leg. Lebanese doctors who treated him at the time said they performed minor surgery to correct a leg inflammation.

The diplomats said the plotters were Sunni Moslems, the majority sect in Syria, who resented Assad's systematic promotion of Alawite Moslems to senior positions in the army. Assad is an Alawite, and the sect has come to dominate the ruling Baath Socialist party since he seized power in November 1971.

Decision on tapes seen late today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ruling on whether President Nixon must turn over tape recordings demanded by Watergate prosecutors was expected today from a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's decision would wrap up the first round of a historic debate headed for the Supreme Court.

Nixon's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, and his courtroom adversary, special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, agree that the final decision will influence government and the presidency for years to come.

Cox set the stage for the confrontation when he subpoenaed nine tapes of conversations between the President and a number of White House aides implicated in the Watergate scandal.

The Senate Watergate Committee, whose hearings produced the disclosure that Oval Office conversations had been taped routinely, also has gone to court to seek access to the tapes.

Committee members feel the tapes would shed light on various contradictions in the testimony of key presidential aides who appeared before the panel.

Nixon has said the tapes would be ambiguous.

He has based his refusal to disclose them on the claim of executive privilege—the theory that the Constitution grants a president the right to withhold information if he judges it to be in the national interest.

scattered in the immediate area of a gunshot.

Cross-examination of the agents revealed that this residue can be removed by thorough washing, and that some of those present at the scene, including the deceased, had not been tested.

Ptl. Dennis Brown, who took a statement from the defendant shortly after the shooting, testified that Brown had said that a person had broken into the room, shot Miss Winfield and had run out the back door.

Sgt. Charles Long and Ptl. Mike Stritenberger, the first officers on the scene, had earlier testified that when they arrived the back door was secured in such a way as to make such entrance and exit, impossible. They saw no way that anyone could have entered and left except by the front door.

During their testimony, neither Steve Robinson nor Sanders had mentioned seeing anyone break into or leave the residence.

Each of the officers was asked if the defendant had acted abnormally, showed any signs of having taken drugs, or appeared intoxicated, at the time that they had seen him. Although none of the officers claimed to be experts in the field of drugs, they said that they had observed no abnormal behavior.

The trial is being heard in the sweltering Common Pleas Courtroom, and Judge Evelyn W. Coffman has repeatedly thanked the jury for giving the testimony their fullest attention.

The State's case, presented by Otis Hess and Robert Simpson, is expected to conclude late Wednesday or early Thursday.

BUSING STARTS IN MEMPHIS SCHOOLS — One of 155 buses discharges passengers at a school in Memphis, Tenn., on the first day of wide scale desegregation busing in that city, one of the south's largest school systems. Buses ran late, two were in minor accidents and some pupils were stranded after school, but officials rated the peaceful day a success. About 27,000 children rode, 13,000 fewer than forecast in a judge's busing order. (AP Wirephoto)

24 persons die in crash of U.S. jet

MADRID (AP) — A U.S. military cargo plane crashed Tuesday night near Madrid and 24 of its 25 occupants were killed, the Spanish Air Ministry reported.

The C141 StarLifter jet was based at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey and was on its way from Athens, Greece, to the U.S. Air Force base at Torrejon, 16 miles east of Madrid. The crash occurred 40 miles east of Madrid.

The Air Force at Torrejon identified the lone survivor as William H. Ray of McGuire Air Force Base, N.J. He suffered multiple fractures of his left leg after apparently being thrown from the aircraft on impact.

The names of the 24 other persons aboard were withheld pending notification of their families. Spanish news agencies said the plane carried a crew of eight and 17 passengers, including several women and children who were relatives of American pilots.

The plane slammed into the ground about a mile outside the little town of Hueva as the craft was preparing to land at the joint Spanish-American base. Local police said none of the townspeople was affected.

The Air Ministry said the plane crashed after losing contact with the Torrejon control tower. It exploded when it hit the ground and burned, the ministry said.

U.S. and Spanish military authorities sealed off the crash site, and American rescue personnel and investigators were sifting through the wreckage today.

The Air Force said in addition to the people aboard, the plane was carrying nearly nine tons of cargo.

The Starlifter was attached to the Military Airlift Command. The Air Force said it was that command's first fatal accident since 1965.

UAW rejects Chrysler pact

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers bargainers, rejecting a Chrysler Corp. contract offer as a "mockery," resume their efforts today to win an acceptable pact from the automaker.

"We're not clear about what happens next," UAW President Leonard Woodcock said on Tuesday after union bargainers unanimously rejected the offer minutes after Chrysler submitted it. The offer called for three per cent wage hikes in each of the next three years.

The union has not detailed its wage demands in negotiating with Chrysler, the bargaining target in seeking new contracts with the nation's three largest automakers. Contracts with Chrysler, Ford and General Motors expire Sept. 14.

"I don't think they want a strike, but they're not working very hard to avoid one," UAW Vice President Doug Fraser said after seeing Chrysler's offer.

"Any optimism we may have had about a settlement certainly seems remote," Woodcock added.

William O'Brien, Chrysler vice president for personnel, said last week that the company's offer would be within federal guidelines holding wage and fringe benefit hikes to 6.2 per cent.

On Tuesday, he told newsmen, "We don't intend to talk about costs. We'll just say it is within government guidelines."

Woodcock also declined to discuss over-all costs of the Chrysler package, saying, "I'd be ashamed. It well could go into the negative."

Decision pending in contempt case

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—A decision by a special three-judge panel of the 11th District Court of Appeals is pending today in a contempt of court case involving Lake County commissioners.

The judges heard final arguments Tuesday but set no date for a decision despite a plea for speed.

The three commissioners had appealed the contempt citation against them issued by Judge Ross Avellone of the Lake County Juvenile Court in a dispute over budget funds for Avellone's operations.

Albert Schwartz, Avellone's attorney, requested a quick decision, contending the juvenile court would run out of funds Sept. 15 and would have to stop operations.

Avellone issued the citation after the commissioners trimmed his $380,000 budget request to $290,000. The judge contended his entry of the budget request in the court journal made full allocation mandatory.

The commissioners, represented by Ted Clamer, assistant Lake County prosecutor, contend the state statute permitting judges to issue such a citation is unconstitutional. Clamer said it deprived the commissioners of their right to due process under the law.

He also contended it was impossible for the commissioners to grant Avellone all the money he requested because the commission didn't have sufficient funds to do so.

Tuesday's arguments bought up a similar 1971 Trumbull County case in which a probate judge had found the Trumbull County commission in contempt of court over budget matters. In that case, the appellate court upheld the probate judge; but the Ohio Supreme Court reversed the decision, ruling that the judge hadn't exhausted other remedies available to him.

It was argued Tuesday that the probate court had less authority than that of the juvenile court and that the journal entry step taken by Avellone wasn't taken in the earlier case.

The three judges, appointed after the regular judges withdrew because they deal annually with the commission, were Edward Mahoney of the 9th District Court of Appeals; Joseph O'Neill, 7th District Court of Appeals, and Oscar Hunsicker, a retired appellate judge.

No trace was found of the two men who took an undetermined amount of money from the Dog and Suds restaurant.

Massive electric generating expansion planned by firms

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Plans for an estimated $3 billion electric generating construction program for northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania were announced Tuesday by the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. and four other firms.

The program provides for the construction by 1983 of one coal-fired and four nuclear power generating units with a planned capacity of five million kilowatts.

Other companies involved in the project are Duquesne Light Co., Ohio Edison Co., Pennsylvania Power Co. and Toledo Edison Co.

CEI said the new facilities would aid in meeting the increasing need for electric energy of about 2.2 million customers in a 14,000-square-mile area.

None of the plants will be built in its service area.

Plans call for two nuclear units to be built by Ohio Edison Co. near Berlin Heights in Erie County, Ohio. Each unit will generate 1.2 million kilowatts when they become operational in January 1982 and December 1983, CEI said.

Two nuclear units, each with 906,000-kilowatt capacity, are to be added to the Davis-Besse Nuclear Power Station near Port Clinton where a similar unit, jointly owned by CEI and Toledo Edison, is now under construction. These units are to be in operation in June 1981 and January 1983.

Another unit, to be built near Shippingport, Pa., was announced last month and is an 825,000-kilowatt coal-fired generator. It will be built and operated by Ohio Edison and Pennsylvania Power. The facility is slated for commercial operation in April, 1978, CEI said.

While each of the five new units will be built and operated by individual companies comprising the Central Area Power Coordination Group, they will be jointly owned and the power allocated on a proportionate basis, CEI said.

With the announcement of plans for the five new units, companies in the power group have 14 generating units either completed, under construction or planned.

Opinion And Comment

Rogers to Kissinger

The Rogers-to-Kissinger move has been rumored so long that it came, when President Nixon announced it, with a flavor of anticlimax. The resignation of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and nomination of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger to replace him is nevertheless of marked significance.

This is especially so because of the President's announcement that in addition to heading the Department of State Kissinger would continue to function as his assistant for national security affairs.

Thus it is evident that Mr. Nixon has no intention of relinquishing his active, direct control of foreign policy. With Kissinger at the helm of State, indeed, it appears that the President will be more firmly in charge of the conduct of foreign affairs than ever.

It has commonly been remarked of Rogers that he has been relegated to a back seat, with Kissinger playing by far the more active role both in formulating and implementing policy.

Unlike many things that are commonly remarked, this is true. Rogers has in notable degree experienced the frustrations that go with having a title but seeing someone else exercise the power.

He has served honorably and well in this limited capacity, however. And only a couple of days before the announcement of his imminent departure, in a news conference which now has the aspect of a swan song, he said some things that his successor would do well to ponder.

On that occasion Rogers found fault with the administration in two areas of concern. He condemned the attitude which fostered such excesses as the burglarizing of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in the name of national security.

He also scorned the falsification of Cambodian bombing reports which kept the truth from Congress and the public over a period of years. These observations made by a conscientious man leaving high office should be taken to heart by Kissinger - and, we say with due respect, by the President.

More news meetings needed

Seen in retrospect, the President's San Clemente press conference prompts two conclusions. One is that he apparently did himself some good by submitting at last to newsmen's questions about Watergate. Some of the questions were tough and penetrating, but even in dealing with these, Mr. Nixon was able to put forward his views on the scandal that afflicts his administration.

The other major conclusion we draw is that an important point about presidential press conferences in general was again illustrated. This is that they offer little chance for incisive, persistent followup on lines of inquiry.

This was shown with special emphasis in the San Clemente conference because it was newsmen's first opportunity in more than five months to ask the President about Watergate — about anything, for that matter. They were working from a tremendous backlog of questions.

Some of these arose from the weeks of testimony by numerous witnesses before the Senate Watergate investigating committee. Some were prompted by the President's televised addresses, which left certain points unanswered. In some cases, the only effective way to clarify some of these points would have been to ask a question, and then another following from it, and then another and another.

This was impossible at San Clemente. The President would take a question, deal with it briefly or with a small speech more or less on point, and then designate another questioner. Followup was minimal.

This is always true to some extent, given the format developed for press conferences over the years. The problem would be greatly lessened, though, were meetings with newsmen held frequently -- at least once every couple of weeks. We respectfully urge upon Mr. Nixon that his would be much in the public interest.

Latest Soviet MIRV tests

WASHINGTON — The curtain is going up on an old familiar drama. The scene opens with wild cries of alarm, "The Russians are coming, the Russians are coming," and we are all defenseless, at their mercy, because of a few mushy headed disarmament idiots.

The centerpiece this time is the revelation that the Soviet Union has successfully tested on two of their missiles an independently targeted multiple reentry vehicle (MIRV). The curtain raiser is faithful to the well-tried formula. News of the MIRV breakthrough is leaded to heralds of doom and they promptly set the drums to beating.

This is based, it seems to me, on a fundamental illusion of America's inevitable superiority. It has been true since the beginning of the nuclear age when the United States was the sole possessor of the atomic bomb. Years would pass before the Soviets could come up with a bomb, it was said.

When they tested their first atomic device several years in advance of most estimates it brought a shock of surprise. The parallel with MIRV is close. For more than three years the United States has been installing multiple warheads on land-based missiles and on those carried by Polaris and Poseidon submarines. While Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird warned that the Soviets would develop MIRV, the prevailing belief was that their achievement of this advanced technology was some way off. There was even the suggestion that the Russians might refrain from MIRVing with the hope that this would make it easier to reach agreement in SALT II on limiting the number of offensive missiles.

ANY TECHNOLOGY the United States can achieve, so can the Soviets. That is the lesson which seems never to be learned as this rerun of the old drama is on once again.

America's MIRV missiles were the reason we could accept the fact of a superior number overall of Soviet missiles without MIRVs. In the next four to five years, as the first Soviet tests move on to deployment, that advantage will disappear.

For the doom sayers not only does this put the nation in deadly peril but it rules out any further effort to arrive at a mutual agreement to cut back strategic armaments. There is, however, a less cataclysmic view. With several years still to go for deployment, the Soviets may regard their MIRV as a bargaining chip in the SALT talks to resume in the fall in Geneva.

On our side we hear a lot about bargaining chips. The $12 billion plus long-range submarine trident is justified as a bargaining counter against a reported similar new sub the Soviets are said to have in the works.

With the whole disarmament apparatus so downgraded by the President, the burden of trying to reconcile the new MIRV development will fall on Henry A. Kissinger, adviser on national security affairs. Kissinger played a leading part in the talks between the President and Leonid I. Brezhnev in the White House in June. The surprising news out of those talks was that the two leaders had agreed a limitation on offensive missiles could be reached in 1974.

KISSINGER, along with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, played the central role in the breakthrough on SALT I, first in May, 1971, and then in the climax which came just before the Moscow summit a year later. In the Byzantine atmosphere of the White House he was subjected to attacks from two different directions. First it was leaded that he had been so dovish as to yield to Soviet blandishments and accept a secondary position for the United States. Later his enemies in the White House put it out that he was the supreme hawk who had taken in all his liberal admirers.

One of the imponderables is how much Kissinger has been sideswiped by the Watergate mess. His role at this point is supremely important if the strategic arms race is not to go into a new perhaps irrevocable spiral. As head of the disarmament and Arms Control Agency, the President named Fred C. Ikle, a gentle, scholarly man whose latest public utterance on the arms race seemed to cast doubt on whether any limitations should be agreed to.

In his official revelation of the Soviet success with MIRV Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger made one statement likely to be downplayed in the currect drama. In spite of the new development and what it means for the future, neither the Soviet Union nor the United States has first-strike capacity which could prevent a retaliatory blow. Cruising the seven seas the Poseidon and Polaris submarines would still be able to destroy the attacher.

Red novelist says life threatened

MOSCOW (AP) — Nobel Prize novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a rare and bluntly outspoken interview with two Western newsmen, says his life has been threatened. He says that, if he is imprisoned or killed, "the main part of my works will be published."

The world-celebrated author, whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, said he and his family have received warnings and "if I am declared killed or suddenly mysteriously dead," the world could conclude that "I have been killed with the approval of the KGB or by it."

The KGB is the Soviet security police organization.

Solzhenitsyn, 54, is the author of such famed novels as "The First Circle," "Cancer Ward" and "August 1914." He won the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature, but authorities prevented him from receiving it in his homeland.

The author was interviewed by The Associated Press and Le Monde of Paris. He accepted written questions and wrote out answers to those he chose to respond to.

The bearded writer, dressed in an open-necked shirt and slacks, was friendly and animated as he discussed developments that have convinced him the cause of individual freedom in the Soviet Union is at a low ebb.

Some other main points of Solzhenitsyn's statements:

—What he calls "the main part of my works" is as yet unpublished.

—He will continue publishing his books in the West. Now that the Soviet Union has signed the international copyright convention, he also will give his works to "samizdat," the clandestine "self-publishing" system used by Soivet dissenters.

—He will further defy officialdom by moving to Moscow to live this winter, despite denial of a permit.

—He wanted particularly to speak out in defense of the noted physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, a prominent Soviet champion of human rights, because he is convinced the increased harassment of Sakharov and others shows the situation is "at a nadir."

"WHO'S BEING INVESTIGATED THIS MORNING, ABERNATHY?"

Hal Boyle . . . Today's success story

SUN CITY CENTER, Fla (AP) — Every year thousands of young people from all over America migrate to New York City, hoping to find fame or fortune in the nation's largest metropolis.

Jerry Gould, a native New Yorker, reversed the trend. He left Manhattan because he could no longer stand it, found opportunity in Florida, and now is one of the country's larger home builders.

"I simply got tired of being pushed about and intimidated in New York," he remarked. "The people who like it feel it is the best place in the world to be, but I feel sorry for them.

"There are a lot of cultural advantages in the big city, but I resent the fact that most of the people who live there don't make enough money to enjoy them. Unless you have money in New York, where's the fun?

"That isn't true in Florida, and other parts of the country. Here you don't have to be rich to play a little golf, go fishing, or just sit and enjoy the climate."

It wasn't sour grapes that led Jerry, who had spent three years in the Army during World War II as a medical technician aboard a hospital ship, to pull up stakes and move south in 1950.

He was a highly successful advertising salesman in Manhattan and had saved up enough money to buy a partnership in his father's retail clothing firm in Miami. Within a short time he also had become a partner in a leading advertising firm and then entered the booming land development field in 1955.

Since then he has built 6,000 homes in Florida and elsewhere.

A pioneer in obtaining legislation to outlaw shady land sale schemes, he prefers the role of "community developer" rather than that of a promoter merely selling land on the installment plan.

He and a partner designed and built Lehigh Acres, a community of some 15,000 people 13 miles from Fort Myers.

But Jerry expects Sun City Center here to be his real life monument in community development. As president of the WG Development Corp., he bought the 2,000-acre site from the Del E. Webb Corp., founder of Sun City, Ariz. The site has since been enlarged to 11,000 acres, and by 1980 Gould expects 30,000 people will be living there in three adjoining communities.

"That's far enough, I feel, to project for the future," said Jerry. "Theoretically, we have room to put 60,000 residences here and a population of 150,000 persons."

Then he added candidly: "But I'm 49 now, and I may not live to see it."

At present Sun City Center is largely a retirement town limited to residents aged 50 or over, where children under 18 can come only as vistors. Later segments appealing to younger family groups are planned, as well as an area for small ranch estates.

The developers also hope to draw residents from such nearby cities as Tampa, Sarasota and St. Petersburg.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Is a 73-year-old swinger harmless?

DEAR ABBY: I recently became very much attracted to a gentleman who proudly admits to being 73. He's a snappy dresser and is full of fun. I am a middle-aged woman, but this man leaves me in the dust when it comes to dancing, tennis, golf, and any other pysical exercise you can name.

He seems very much interested in me. My question: At his age, is he harmless?

JOYCE

DEAR JOYCE: If you mean what I think you mean, if he's "harmless" he won't be able to do you any good. But whether he can do you any good without doing you any harm will depend on YOUR condition.

DEAR ABBY: You were wrong when you advised against reporting the fraudulent welfare recipient. If someone told you that he had witnessed a robbery, would you advise him to "judge not"?

Welfare agencies welcome legitimate complaints, and each complaint is objectively investigated. The complaintant may remain anonymous if desired, and his name is never revealed to the client. However, vague statements such as, "I know 10 people on welfare who drive Cadillacs and have $1,000 in the bank," are stupid and useless. A person making such a comment usually cannot name a single person who even comes close to that description. Complaints should be as specific and factual as possible.

We find that most complaints are not well-founded because the complainant is trying to "get back" at the recipient, or that he has drawn a wrong conclusion by not knowing all the facts in the case. But it is worthwhile to investigate each complaint.

If fraudulent and ineligible cases can be eliminated from the welfare roles, more resources will be available to help those who are truly in need, and the burden will be lighter on Mr. Taxpayer.

WEST VIRGINIA SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR W.C.S.W.: Thank you for your fair and helpful letter. Your answerwas was much better than mine. It believe all witnessed crimes should be reported, but encouraging every American to "inform" on his neighbor for an assumed wron-doing would lead us uncomfortably close to becoming a police state, and that I abhor.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that lady who wants to be spanked on her bare bottom: I will gladly oblige her. I am a 68-year-old widower. I am also a retired upholsterer with 50 years experience on seats and bottoms.

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the great leap forward in SinoAmerican relations, there may be a long wait ahead for the three U.S. television networks that want to establish permanent news bureaus in Peking.

The most optimistic forecast comes from Elmer Lower, president of ABC News, who recently returned from a threeweek "working visit" to mainland China.

"It's at least a year away," he says, keeping his fingers crossed that ABC will be the first allowed to set up shop in Peking. The competition among ABC, CBS and NBC to be the first is intense.

Last April, the networks' high-level campaigning began with the China visit of William S. Paley, board chairman of CBS, and Gordon Manning, a senior vice president of CBS News.

They were followed on July 20 by Lower; Leonard H. Goldenson, board chairman of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.; and Desmond Wong, a Chinese-speaking ABC News film editor here for 14 years.

Top NBC officials have been trying to arrange a similar visit, but NBC says there's no word yet on when they'll be allowed to go.

Lower's party left China on Aug. 10 with an agreement to exchange television newsfilm, documentary and sports programs and personnel. But no Peking bureau was in the agreement.

He said officials of China's Central Broadcasting Bureau, when asked about the matter, said there were problems of finding both housing and translators for American television news teams.

"So the net effect of what they were saying was, 'We'll give it further consideration,' and the way I translate that is, 'No, not for the present,'" Lower said.

He said they gave no indication of when they'd allow any American news bureau to set up shop and "I don't think they know when they'll do it.

"While they gave these reasons, I heard another possible reason from people who've made the same request and from people who see it from arm's length—not all of them in broadcasting.

"They say that at this delicate stage of U.S.-Chinese relations, they (mainland Chinese officials) may not want three American networks, the press associations and perhaps a couple of (newspaper) specials running all around the country doing highly competitive daily reporting.

"So that may be a reason," Lower said. "They may prefer to play this game on rotation— letting one news team in for one assignment, letting one in for another. And actually, they're doing pretty good with that so far."

Ohio Power talks stall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Negotiators for the Ohio Power Co. and striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers met for contract talks Tuesday. No progress was reported.

The session marked the first time the two sides had sat down together since about 500 Ohio Power employes walked off their jobs July 1 at locations in Newark, Zanesville and Steubenville.

Company spokesmen said no new talks have been scheduled by federal mediator Joseph P. Santa Emma. Santa Emma would not comment on the progress of the talks.

About 1,300 Utility Workers of America employes of the company, meanwhile, continued their strike. That dispute involves UWA workers at plants in Ohio and West Virginia.

No progress was reported in those negotiations.

Former queen narrates news show

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP) — Brazilian beauty Ieda Maria Vargas Athanasio — Miss Universe of 1963 — has returned to the public eye, a decade later, this time with a daily TV news program in this bustling southern Brazilian city.

"I'm doing this for professional reasons. I'm not trying to be a store-window mannequin, nor am I preaching any feminine independence moviement like Women's Lib," Mrs. Athanasio, now 28 and married, told an interviewer.

Women news commentators on TV are rare in Brazil, where "machismo" — male dominance — is still a way of life.

"I didn't go on television to prove that I'm independent," Mrs. Athanasio stated. "My goal is simply to present a good program."

As Ieda Vargas, the green-eyed, brown-haired Brazilian teen-ager became an international beauty symbol a decade ago by winning the Miss Universe contest in Miami Beach.

MISS VARGAS eventually returned to Brazil and in 1968 married local real estate agent Jose Carlos Athanasio. The couple has a son, Rafael, 2, and another baby is on the way.

Mrs. Athanasio says she's "much more mature" than when she was Miss Universe. But Porto Alegre TV viewers agree that she hasn't lost the youthful beauty that helped her win the title.

"She creates a good impression on camera and has a hoarse voice that is sensational," says Channel 10 news director Carolos Bastos, her new boss.

"I'm still nervous. I can do better," Mrs. Athanasio admitted.

Athanasio told a reporter he "agreed" to let his wife take the TV job, "because that way she will develop herself personally." "Although his South American country has no laws prohibiting women from taking most jobs whenever they want, the "machismo" tradition dictates that wives don't go to work without their husband's okay.

"THE IMPORTANT thing is for women to pursue their own goals and feel proud of their own accomplishments, whether it's in the home or performing a service, such as working in television. Women should not let themselves be bothered by other people's opinions," the ex-Miss Universe declared.

Mrs. Athanasio holds a typically Brazilian attitude about the importance of the home and the family in relation to a career: "My greatest preoccupation now is the baby I'm going to have in a few months."

But then she added: "You know, I'd like to have it in the morning, so I could announce the news of the birth on my TV show that night."

Class meets at Deer Creek

Deer Creek Dam was the setting for the annual picnic of the Willing Workers Class of the Madison Mills United Methodist Church, when swimming and games were conducted by the youth.

Mrs. John Melvin gave the invocation preceding the potluck meal. John Stamer conducted the business session, when Mrs. Gary Hidy, chairman of the 1974 community calendar project gave progress report. She announced that Friday is the deadline for all the materials to be turned in to her, so that listings may be tabulated before Tuesday at 1 p.m., when serveral class members will meet at the church to prepare the calendar order. Calendar packets may be also left at the home of Mrs. Alvin Johnson.

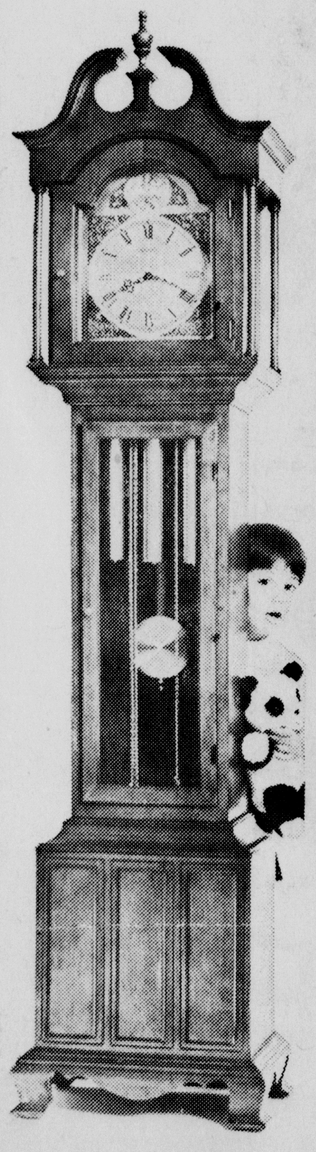

Anyone in the Bloomingburg or Madison Mills communities who is interested in having birthdays or anniversaries listed on the community calendar, may call Mrs. Gary Hidy 437-7216. Each calendar is $1.00 and each listing is 25 cents. Any organization desiring meetings listed may do so for 25 cents each.

Class members will deliver the calendars upon their arrival. This is the sixth year for the project.

Present for the potluck were Mr. and Mrs. John Delay and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dorn and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Stamer and Debbie and Mark, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Melvin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Reid and Janet, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hidy and daughter, and the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Allen White and Carmen, Nancy and Jim.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

WHERE did the summer go? Today the school bus will be picking up youngsters for that first day of school. They may moan and groan about going back but they'll be excited when the alarm sounds on the all-important day.

The last week of vacation is usually a busy time for youngsters and for mothers, as they shop around for school supplies (how kids love picking out lunch boxes, pencil cases, school bags, pens, pencils and notebooks). And then, of course, wardrobes have to be bought.

It used to be traditional to wear a plaid outfit back to the classroom — and plaids are still popular — but this year solid colors seem to star. At least this is the trend in Cinderella's back-to-school collection. Something else is evident, too: Instead of dresses, many youngsters will be wearing pant sets in class, and if they resemble styles that mothers favor it's no coincidence. Youngsters have always enjoyed copy-catting when it comes to clothes.

The three school-day outfits pictured here — all from the Cinderella collection — are crisp, carefree and, attention Mom, they're machine washable, too.

Stylish sees seven-year cycle in hair

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

We are at the seven-year-cycle that brings a new hair-style, in the opinion of Edith Imre, long-time stylist.

As she sees the change, one's natural hair will provide a hair-do with height by the addition of hairpieces, a look that has finally evolved from "the worst period of hairdressing" — teased hair with its lacquered height — which all better beauty salons tried to reverse for many years," she says.

Women wanted the height and there was no other way, but they went far awry trying to fit it into fashion. fashion.

"For example, many years ago after the high pompadour style, a new look came in — flat and short. But women didn't like it because it was not flattering. The hairdo evolved into the popular Italian style because the style helped combine some of the height most women missed from the old pompadour with the softness of the newer, shorter look," Miss Imre adds.

It has taken all this time to get back to a look of natural height which the hairpieces can give because "they can be used to give the height the bone structure needs for the natural look," if they are properly used.

Well-known in the wig market, she was the first to put wigs into department stores. Miss Imre saw the wig business go into a slump a few years later because "wigs were being sold like hats to bolster a dying millinery business." Some name designers were putting their names on both low-priced and expensive wigs and people became very confused.

"A woman would buy a wardrobe of wigs, perhaps for the low price, and the effect was not as she had envisioned it from the advertisements. But many wigs were sold at counters and at millinery departments and there was no shaping and styling to achieve a flattering fit. But it isn't a total loss for those who still have such wigs. Beauty salons may still update them with proper styling."

The wig people made many mistakes, one reason for the major slump in the industry.

"For example, many wigs were being made with teenagers in mind, but most teenagers never really bought wigs. But they did buy hairpieces even though many stores did not carry them. They were instead trying to sell everybody a wig. Some hairpieces were sold at counters with barrettes but that was about all," she says.

Although Miss Imre has designed easy-care synthetic wigs as well as the human hair wig which needs more care, she still prefers human hair for falls and for the graying lady. She buys the real hair in Italy and she is always fascinated watching how they separate the hairs with talcum powder "an unbelievably delicate operation," she says.

There is little demand for long hairpieces except in human hair. She thinks youngsters will stick with their own long hair even though there are predictions that they will cut it. But many young people are adopting the new trend in hair coloring, sunflake and moonlight colors, which has replaced old-fashioned frosting, she remarked. The effect is pinpoints of shimmering grayish or blondish lights through one's own hair or wig.

Legendary Brick Top recalls youth

BY ANN GRIFFITH
The Charleston Daily Mail

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor sat at her feet as she sang. Cole Porter wrote a song especially for her (to keep her from singing his other hits, she adds ruefully.

For more than three decades she was known as Brick Top to the high and mighty of international society. With her copper-red hair, her sobriquet served her well as the doyenne of her nightclub, the "world's most expensive night spot," first in Paris' Place Pigalle, later on the Via Veneto in Rome.

She began life on Aug. 14, 1894, in Alderson, W. Va., not as Brick Top but as Ada Beatrice Queen Victoria Louisa Virginia Smith, the youngest of four children.

At the age of 5 Brick Top moved with her mother, Hatti Thompson Smith, and the family, to Chicago. She's never been back to West Virginia since and now, she said in an interview in New York City, she's afraid to return to her home, "afraid I'll never leave again.

"All my life I've thought of myself as a West Virginian and I'll be 80 next year. I always tell my age, always. One reason is that it makes the younger girls feel bad. I don't have any wrinkles in my face.

"I've been blessed all my life. Look, my mother never let me forget that we were one of the FFWV — First Familes of West Virginia. My mother's family were all white — white Negroes with red or blonde hair and blue eyes. We always were proud people with good manners."

She started in vaudeville in Chicago at the age of 15, and by 16 was in New York. She went to Paris in 1924 for six months, "and ended up staying 16 years. I didn't leave until the Germans were marching down the Champs-Elysees."

She was in Rome for 20 years after the war but considered Paris her favorite city.

"I was there when Cole (Porter) wrote 'Love for Sale,' 'Night and Day,' all those famous songs. But he never asked me to sing his songs. I'm not really a singer, you know. You might say I'm an entertainer, but mostly I guess you would say I'm a personality.

"Finally one day Cole told me, 'Brick, I've written a song for you,' It was 'Miss Otis Regrets.' That was written especially for me. And it's not a funny song. Really it's very sad."

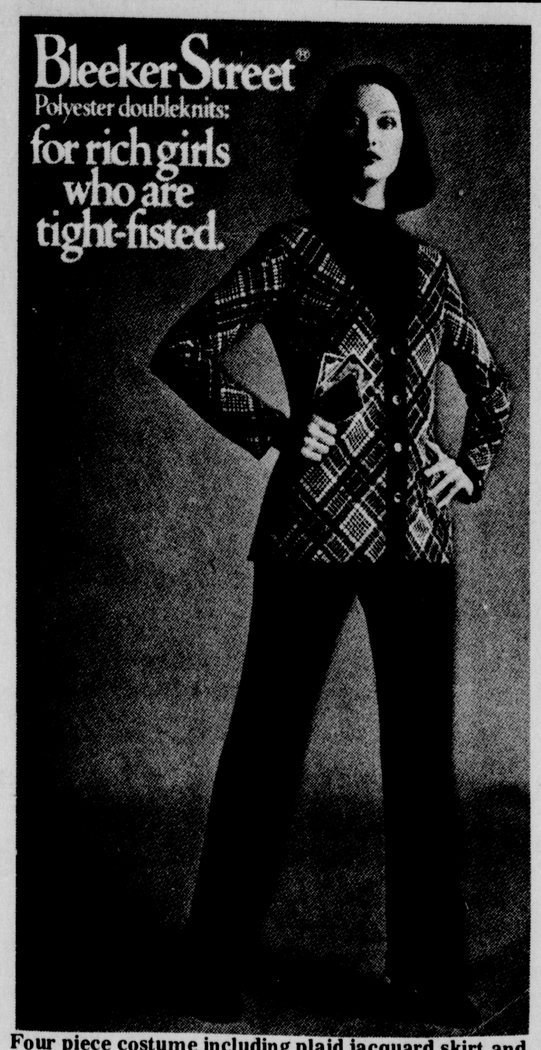

F. Scott Fitzgerald and his wife Zelda in Paris "were my greatest friends. I'd like to get my hands on the broad who wrote 'Zelda.' I'd punch her. All that stuff about Zelda being jealous of Scott's success. That's not true, not true at all. I saw them outside their professional lives. I saw them when they were cold sober. They were very much in love."

Earlier this year she moved to New York to appear at the Show Club. She doesn't like New York, but she accepts it. "God is my travel agent, that's why I'm in New York when I've always hated New York. God brought me here for a purpose."

None of Brick Top's family is left, but she has friends and health, "except for a little trouble with my heart."

"I have put my trust in God and He has taken me far. Soon, I have a feeling, He is going to take me to West Virginia, and I can just hear my Momma in her grave laughing and saying, 'There's my baby, back home at last where she belongs.' "

WINS BICYCLE — Jane Horney, 417 Eastern Av., was selected as the winner of a 10-speed bicycle in a Back to School contest sponsored by Scott's Variety Store. Making the presentation is Ron Cobb, store manager.

Fire protection is theme for Rotary Club program

Fire protection routines were outlined by two members of the Washington C.H. Fire Department at the noon luncheon of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club Tuesday in the Country Club.

Chief M.L. (Joe) Denen and Lt. David Seaman pointed out several fire hazards and precautions that businessmen and home owners alike should be aware of during their presentation to the Rotarians.

Seaman said all businessmen and home owners should be certain that their insurance will cover all losses caused by a major fire and that it is also important that persons maintain complete inventory figures on the contents of their home or business.

The Washington C.H. fireman also mentioned fire hazards with a color slide presentation. He recalled a fire at a local industry. Seaman said that when the fire department responded to the blaze a semi-trailer rig was blocking access to the fire hydrant.

In explaining a number of time-saving ideas, Seaman said that businessmen should be sure there is easy access to fire hydrants, sprinkler systems and fire lanes to the building.

He also pointed out hazards in the home, especially using aerosol spray cans around open flames. He said the pressurized spray cans are quite flammable and very dangerous and housewives should be careful using them while working in the kitchen.

THE COLOR SLIDE presentation also included pictures of a routine day around the Washington C.H. fire station. The slides pictured the firemen making checklists of the various equipment and the routine housekeeping duties including tours and meetings with auxiliary firemen and other fire departments in Fayette County.

Seaman spoke about some of the equipment used by the Washington C.H. department, including self-contained breathing devices. He also explained that two members of the Washington C.H. department are qualified scuba divers.

The training program conducted by the Washington C.H. firemen was also mentioned. Seaman said members of the department recently demonstrated the proper use of fire extinguishers to employes at the Margaret Clark Oakfield Convalescent Center.

Problems created through insufficient manpower at the Washington C.H. fire department were also discussed. It was pointed out that the fire department has only 12 men and the force should be at least 18.

In summary, Sheriff Don Thompson praised the fire department for its work and quick response. Sheriff Thompson singled out a single car crash recently in which a Circleville driver was trapped in a car which had caught fire. He praised the firemen for their assistance in saving the man's life.

Paul Crosby, vice president, conducted the business meeting. Bill Hendren was the program chairman.

Visiting Rotarians were Fred Keeler, of Hillsboro; Myron Haradon, of Circleville; Robert Head and Dr. Walter Felson, both of Greenfield; Richard Kilian, of Mount Joy, Pa.; T. Edward Jones, of Hong Kong, and David Kohli and Robert McNeely, both of Mount Sterling.

Phone talks hung up over issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An official of General Telephone Co. said Tuesday that wages and union security remain the stumbling blocks in a 45-day strike by the Communication Workers of America.

Robert C. Fletcher, chief company negotiator, made the statement after a bargaining session with the union and federal mediator Howard Hughes produced no progress toward settlement of the contract dispute.

"It is apparent the two overriding demands of the union are an agency shop and about 18 per cent more in wages over the company's offer," said Fletcher, vice president of company personnel.

Fletcher said the CWA wants a modified agency shop which would require all new employes to join the union or pay a service fee equal to union dues.

He said the CWA negotiators' wage demands would amount to about $240,000 more annually than the company's pay offer. The CWA has asked for 10 per cent, and General Telephone has offered 7 per cent.

No new bargaining sessions have been scheduled.

Faith, determination keep center going

MILLSTONE, Ky. (AP) — Mable Kiser believes the Lord will help her continue to serve the poor folk of the Appalachian mountains.

She's pretty sure the government won't.

Mrs. Kiser directs the Millstone Sewing Center in rural Letcher County. It's a tiny operation deep in the Kentucky mountains and was one of the first Appalachian promects funded by the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

Throughout its seven-year history Millstone has struggled to obtain federal funding. Community support and the faith and determination of the women who run the center have kept it alive and the money has come through each year.

Now the future is uncertain.

Federal funds will soon run out and Mrs. Kiser expects her final cut-off notice to arrive any day.

"We'll just try to stay alive from month to month," she said.

She trusts the Lord will show her the way to carry on her work with the poor.

"The whole sewing center is built on faith," she said. "From the beginning the Lord has supplied our needs.

THE CENTER employs elderly women from Millstone, a former mining town with a population of 576, and neighboring communities to sew clothes for the poor.

The women cut and sew new material and remake used clothing received at the center. Each needy family that contacts the center receives a package containing three garments for each member of the family.

The center also aids families whose homes have burned. Those so-called "burnouts" receive used clothing and sheets, quilts and pillowcases, and anything else the center can provide.

Each year the center serves about 500 families, with an average of seven persons in a family. The center reaches mainly those in Letcher County, but also employs a "roving seamstress" and has started a small operation at Hindman in Knott County.

LAST JULY federal funds were cut back from $52,000 annually to less than $40,000 and the sewing center staff was reduced from 14 to eight. However, Mrs. Kiser said production stayed about the same.

"The Lord stretches it," she explained. "Only God can give you something over money."

All maintenance work on the former school house is done by volunteers from the community. They have drilled a deep well and installed a pump, reroofed the building and painted the four-room structure inside and out.

Money for maintenance is raised through raffles and pie sales. Federal funds cover only salaries and materials, Mrs. Kiser said.

General Accounting Office: more than bookkeepers

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office has come a long way since the days when its auditors spent most of their time checking government ledgers to make sure the taxpayers' money was being spent properly.

The GAO still has plenty of accountants on its payroll. And it still keeps a close eye on government spending.

But the congressional watchdog agency tries to do much more.

"We are trying to make our work more relevant to the congressional intent," says Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, who has headed the agency since 1966.

"We are trying to look into the question whether programs are working or not, getting into program effectiveness, program evaluation," says the 59-year-old Kansas-born Ph. D. and career public servant.

The 3,100 professionals on the GAO staff include lawyers, engineers, industrial management specialists, business administration graduates, statisticians, actuaries, systems analysts and computer experts.

There is even one medical doctor because some of the most expensive programs GAO checks on are in the health field.

The agency also has a number of consultants on call for specialized inquiries.

The increasingly variegated professional staff gives a measure of how widely GAO's activities have spread beyond the old assignment of auditing the books and making sure the dollars appropriated were spent for designated purposes and no other.

During one recent month, chosen at random, GAO sent 27 reports to Congress. Among the titles:

—Progress and problems in achieving objectives of the school lunch program.

—Need for improved controls for identifying and correcting safety defects on light aircraft.

—Need for improved consumer protection in interstate and land sales.

—Social Services: do they help welfare recipients achieve self-support or reduced dependency.

—The federal catalog program: progress and problems in attaining a uniform identification system for supplies.

—Progress and problems of U.S. assistance for land reform in Vietnam.

—Extent of cost growth and delays in construction programs of the Department of Defense.

—Opportunities for improving the Atomic Energy Commission's administration of agreements with states regulating users of radioactive materials.

—Analysis of cost estimates for the space shuttle and two alternate programs.

Part of GAO's work load, Staats estimates 10 per cent, is dictated by specific statutes.

His agency is required, for example, to audit the books of government corporations. Some single-purpose laws, such as the one authorizing government guarantee of loans to the Lockheed Corp., specifically require GAO oversight and reports.

Requests from Congress account for 25 per cent of GAO's effort, and this segment is growing.

Some of the requests come from committee chairmen, and GAO treats most of these as commands.

Others come from individual members and, while the agency does not look on these as having the legal force of committee requests, it tries to avoid flatly turning any down.

Sometimes requests from individual members fall into a pattern that suggests a general survey and report to Congress as a whole. In other cases, GAO staffers negotiate with the inquiring lawmaker's office and agree on reasonable limits for investigation.

The rest of GAO's projects, roughly two-thirds, are self-generated.

The agency keeps a resident staff on Capitol Hill, closely in touch with committee staffs, and has others detailed to major executive agencies.

The GAO also has 16 regional offices in the United States, including one in Hawaii, and four in foreign countries, including one in Saigon which may be phased out.

These outlying representatives comprising more than half the GAO staff, are under instructions to keep abreast of the far-flung governmental operations, anticipate developments in which Congress will be interested and make suggestions for studies.

Reports, often critical, on individual Defense Department contracts were a stock in trade of the GAO during much of the 60's.

There are many fewer such reports now. Staats has cited three reasons for the shift in emphasis:

—The Pentagon's own Defense Contract Audit Agency has been established to take over most of such individual audits.

—The Truth in Negotiations Act, for which GAO pressed, requires contractors to submit certified cost and price data in their negotiations.

—GAO has broadened its investigative scope.

The watchdog agency enjoys generally good relations with its master, Congress. It has little trouble over its annual budget, which may reach $100 million this year.

But the relationship has not always been one of unalloyed affection.

In 1965, the year before Staats became comptroller general, a House Government Operations subcommittee looked into allegations that, among other things, the GAO was putting headline-hunting titles on its reports on defense contracts and making them public before the firms concerned had a chance to see them in final form.

According to GAO sources, the subcommittee's report produced a chill in the agency that led to considerable caution for several years.

GAO apparently has long since recovered its self-assurance.

The process presumably has been helped along by the present comptroller's policy of shifting emphasis toward efficiency studies rather than searches for irregularities—although the latter have not been abandoned.

Some changes in procedures that began after the subcommittee investigation continues — for example, more neutrally worded titles and a rule that Congress and the persons reported on get copies of GAO reports a day before they are released generally.

Moreover, the GAO reproduces, essentially in full, as annexes to its reports the comments and disagreements of agencies and persons reported on.

Sources in the agency say, in fact, that there has now appeared some counter-criticism that GAO has become too easy on business. If the complaints come from both directions, they contend, GAO must be doing its job.

The agency has not hesitated to spell out in its reports instances of what it considered less than full cooperation by some of the governmental units it has studied. It has disagreed with defense agencies, units of the Treasury and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., among others.

There is some firing back.

At a recent congressional committee hearing, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt, the Chief of Naval Operations, took strong exception to what he called inaccurate GAO estimates of the cost of homeporting warships in Greece.

As for his general opinion of the agency, the admiral said, "I think they serve a useful function. I think that their work, like that of every other agency, ranges from very good to very bad, and I think this particular study was neither the best nor the worst I have seen."

Zumwalt complained also that when the GAO makes a study "it is not possible for the body being investigated to see the report in time to respond in an intelligent way."

The GAO, for its part, says it allows at least 60 days for the subject of a report to study the preliminary draft and make its comments before publication.

This is one reason, Staats says, why reports sometimes appear dated. A major study requires up to 18 months to complete.

Last year, the GAO was handed an additional, potentially controversial job it did not want.

When Congress passed the Federal Election Campaign Act, requiring much recordkeeping and reporting and setting limits on spending for political advertising, it resolved a dispute as to whether the act should be administered by an independent commission by dividing the responsibility.

The GAO was given the task of overseeing the reporting provisions relating to campaigns for president and vice president; the development of advertising spending regulations for all candidates for federal office, and auditing and reporting on the campaign fund built up by the dollar checkoffs taxpayers authorize on their income tax returns.

The secretary of the Senate and clerk of the House were given major responsibility for those provisions of the act regulating campaign activities for their branches.

Staats created an Office of Federal Elections within the GAO and brought in an old Budget Bureau colleague, Phillip S. Hughes, to head it.

Hughes, in an interview, called the act workable, but not perfect.

But he said he thinks he and his staff of about 30, who have the job of overseeing some 2,000 registered political committees and groups, have made progress.

Many of the campaign committees are hit-and-run affairs put together for a single effort, he said. But he said that among the continuing ones, such as national party and state central committees, the word is out that "you'd better watch out for those bastards from the GAO. We didn't think they'd come around, but they did."

Hughes said his unit has referred about 30 cases to the Justice Department. Most, he said, are traceable to sloppy and amateurish record keeping and groups of both parties have been cited.

But, he said, "The public knows more than it ever knew before, I have some personal pride in thinking campaigns will never be the same, as a result of disclosures. We missed some and we caught some."

The GAO, now described by its head as "the eyes and ears of the Congress, performing a management information service," was created in 1921 by the Budget and Accounting Act. The same law set up the Bureau of the Budget, now the Office of Management and Budget.

The General Accounting Office belongs to Congress, as the budget office belongs to the president.

The comptroller general, it is true, is appointed by the president for a 15-year term, but once a comptroller is confirmed by the Senate only Congress can remove him. It never has.

The salary is $42,500 a year, the same as a senator or representative, and at the end of his term he may retire on full pay.

He thus enjoys a notable degree of independence.

The GAO staff is under Civil Service, with the attendant protections and prohibitions against political influence.

Staats was deputy director of the Bureau of the Budget, a registered Democrat but essentially a nonpolitical career civil servant, when President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed him comptroller general.

Prison inmates may be paid for work in Arizona test

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP)— Warden Harold J. Cardwell says inmates of the Arizona State Prison may be paid for work performed if the legislature approves a $260,000 wage-incentive plan.

Cardwell said Tuesday the request would be included in his 1974-75 budget as part of an effort to improve morale among inmates.

Cardwell left the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, this summer to become warden at this Arizona prison. The Ohio prison was being phased out. "I think that all the inmates should be paid something for working," Cardwell said. "This is one of the things that needs to be done."

The legislature approved $37,300 for the program on a trial basis in the 1972-73 prison budget. The warden said he would ask $217,500 more because "the incentive plan has proved its worth."

Nearly 200 of the more than 1,400 inmates are participating. The program pays an hourly rate starting at two cents and increasing to a maximum of 33 cents.

"The problem we now have is that we get a lot of men who can do nothing but unskilled labor and we don't have the money to pay them for this," Cardwell said.

He hopes to see inmates in maximum security receive about 10 cents an hour for work, those in lesser security status 15 cents.

Prisoners are allowed to draw $40 a month from any funds they may have on account for purchases at the prison commissary.

Crews continue road work

Mowing and road maintenance are on the agenda this week for city, county and state road crews.

County Engineer Charles P. Wagner said the county crews will be resurfacing Robinson Road, the White Oak Road, Beatty Road and other roads in Perry Township. Workmen are also spray patching roads in Jefferson Township, working on the Miller Ditch along Ohio 729, and mowing weeds.

Bill Duncan, acting superintendent of the city service department, said the city workmen are building driveways, patching streets and mowing weeds. Crews are also working on school signs and painting crosswalks.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Highway Department in Washington C.H., said the state crews would be operating six mowers this week, installing new drains along the new section of Ohio 753, and working on highway berms on Ohio 41, north of Jeffersonville, and U.S. 62, south of Washington C.H. He said a resurfacing project is planned for U.S. 35 near the Plamer Road.

RIGHT ON TARGET — Descending at about 12 feet per second, a member of the Kings Island Skydiving Team steers his special parachute so that he will land on a designated target. The skydivers jump from altitudes up to 8,000 feet and perform a number of freefall stunts during their descent. Smoke bombs attached to their feet add color to the exhibition.

Bicycling minister to mark 50th anniversary

If you think bicycle riding is just for kids, you'd better take another think.

A 78-year-old retired Methodist minister, who will mark 50 years in the services of the church and humanity Friday, insists you never get too old to ride a bike and that, if you do, you'll live longer.

Although the Rev. Cloyce D. Copley, 221 Gardner Ct., has passed his allotted three score years and ten, there is rarely a day when the weather permits that he is not on his bicycle. He rides for pleasure, for exercise and to do the shopping and then back home with the basket full of groceries hung on the handlebars. It's not that he has to go shopping on his bicycle; for the Copleys have a compact car they use when they go places together. Then why does he ride his bicycle? His answer is simple: "I want to live longer."

The golden anniversary was celebrated last Tuesday in the parsonage of the Broadway Methodist Church in Toledo with his two sons and two daughters and their families there for the occasion. His son, Norman, was the host. His other son, Hal, of Vandalia, and his family had recently returned from a missionary tour in Italy.

The Rev. Mr. Copley, a tall angular man, is robust, hale and hearty — the evidence that bicycles are not just for kids.

Incidentally, more and more adults — all of them older than the Rev. Mr. Copley — are among the growing number of bicyclists. Often the mother and father, with a tiny tot perched on a seat behind, go out for their evening ride. Many have the newfangled 10-speed bikes, but not the Rev. Mr. Copley; the plain old vintage type is good enough for him.

IT WAS BACK before World War I that a Wood County farm boy, with dreams of a quiet life on the land, entered Ohio State University to learn more about the developing sciences of agriculture.

Cloyce Copley entered Ohio State in 1914 and during his sophomore year in 1915 he received the spiritual call to the service of the church. While continuing his studies, he began to overcome his timidity in speaking before groups when he started preaching at various churches and meetings.

Although he took time out to serve 10 months in the Navy during World War I, he received his bachelor of science degree in agriculture from OSU.

Instead of returning to the land and farming as he had one time dreamed of doing, he devoted his time to preaching and in 1923 he received his license from the Ohio Methodist Conference. With his background in agriculture, he asked for and received assignments to preach in rural churches.

Meanwhile, he attended Boston School of Theology and after his graduation was ordained by the Methodist Conference in 1928 in special session at Springfield.

AT THE OUTBREAK of World War II, he enlisted as a chaplain and served in the Army for 40 months, mostly overseas with field hospital units.

After the war he returned to his ministry in 1949, again among the rural churches of Ohio. He retired in 1966 and he and Mrs. Copley, the former Cleora Marie Hay, came to Washington C.H. to make their home in Gardner Village for retired ministers.

Retirement, however, has not meant idleness. Although now 78 years old, he neither looks nor acts like it. He teaches a Sunday School class at Grace United Methodist, serves three days a week as chaplain at Memorial Hospital and frequently fills in for vacationing ministers of other churches. As the hospital chaplain, he spends most of his time with patients not members of churches here.

He is a past commander of the Fayette County Barracks of Veterans of World War I and is now the barracks adjutant. He also is past commander of the Burnett-Ducey Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He is now serving his third year as chaplain of the state World War I veterans organization.

THE REV. CLOYCE D. COPLEY

Cycle gang disrupts funeral rites

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — About 40 police stood by Tuesday as 75 members of the Outlaws motorcycle club attended the funeral of a member.

Police were alerted to be on hand at the funeral of John Hathaway, 25, of Norwood, Ohio. He died Friday in Warren County of a bullet wound.

Police said the shooting was "either an accident or suicide."

Nancy Massey of Charleston, W.Va., sister of Hathaway, complained. "When we got to the funeral home, there were about 75 of them sitting around outside, drinking beer and cursing.

"They came in to the funeral home and had no respect for us. They made racial insults to some Negro friends of John's and were dirty, scruffy and disrespectful."

Police said the family complained that the Outlaws forced their motorcycles and cars ahead of the family cars in the procession to the cemetery, stopped the family from having its own service, fired guns and rockets in the air and jumped in the grave with the coffin.

Family members complained the coffin was filled with "bags of stuff" and Outlaw emblems.

Police did search the motorcyclists leaving the cemetery and confiscated two guns. A half dozen others were rounded up in a wooded area by canine units. But all were released.

Capt. William Neal said no attempt was made to interfere for fear of "violating someone's civil rights."

Neal said the guns being fired were similar to firings made at military funerals and he saw nothing wrong with it.

"For all we knew," Neal said, "they may have been firing blanks."

Attendance dips at fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Hot, humid weather was blamed for holding attendance at the 120th Ohio State Fair Tuesday below the figure for the same day last year.

A spokesman said total attendance at the fair Tuesday was 158,803, compared to 161,531 for the same day in 1972. He said estimated paid admission was 78,781.

The spokesman said total attendance since the fair began last Thursday was at 1,147,375, compared to 1,121,512 for the same period last year.

The millionth fairgoer passed through a turnstile at 9 a.m. Tuesday. She was Sylvia Feduchak of Upper Arlington. Mrs. Feduchak and her four children were awarded stuffed animals and tickets for free amusement rides.

The U.S. Army Silver Eagles, a precision flight demonstration team made up of 30 helicopters and 30 men, will be featured at activities today. Harness racing and the Schlitz 40-horse hitch team are also on tap.

Sonny and Cher will perform at the grandstand.

More to college than studying

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Suddenly — there is housekeeping, when young people go off to college.

After the tuition, board and room have been paid and the last few cents have been squeezed from the parents' exchequer for clothes, somebody remembers a wardrobe of cleaning aids and tools. About that time may come a foot-long list from the student dormitory advisory committee or whatever, suggesting cleaning aids needed by freshmen.

The list may include broom, mop, wax, polish, iron, window cleaner, brushes, sewing aids and so on, if it runs true to form.

Prodded by the reminder, most mothers will throw in vitamin pills, nose drops and other medication a daughter or son may need occasionally. Following this plan you can whittle away a $100 bill faster than you can say broke.

Chances are that Johnny and Mary will cart these cleaning accessories across the land to their dorms, and in spring it may all be brought home (or left there) — including the unused vitamin pills, many colored threads, buttons and so on.

The silliness of this expense has been shared by two people — your student and his rommate, who also has traveled with mop, pail, ad infinitum. How many cleaning aids are required to clean one small room anyway?

It is far easier to provide the student with enough money to purchase what he will need to keep the room clean after he determines the situation. Practically the first thing he will do is seek a grocery store, anyway.

The best investment might be a small vacuum cleaner. If parents need a new one, pass on the old to the student. Or buy an inexpensive electric broom or vacuum with cleaning accessories, and show the student how to make cleaning a room less of a chore. He may be able to rent out the vacuum when it is not in use.

One second-year student found that it was far easier to vacuum her room once a week, using the various accessories for cleaning walls, windows and shelves than to try to keep the room clean with individual tools.

A BIG PROBLEM in dormitories is crumbs, this student explained. They are ground into everything — mattresses, rugs, carpets, bed throws, sheets. A broom is a wonderful cleaning tool, but it is difficult to manipulate in a room crowded with beds, desks, bureaus and so on. Then, too, crumbs find their way into unlikely places such as the corners of clothes closets and drawers.

THE UNKEMPT look in dorms may not be the fault of students. The best endowed schools set a poor example in cleanliness. In spite of rules about cooking in rooms and assessment threats for damaging walls — one student received a post-season bill for $1.85 for putting a nail in the wall — the halls and stairs of some student dormitories are filthy even at the start of the year.

One parent was shocked when he walked up the stairs of his son's dorm on the first day of school. Stairs and hallway walls were filthy with grime, stains and graffiti. Some of it looked years old. Those stairs would be used by students on that second floor more than the elevators. In fact the room was dusty and dreary and had not even been painted over the summer. It is a good way to promote slovenliness.

Lots of students would welcome the chance to give the hallways and rooms of their building a good scrubbing or painting for the few cents they might earn. For the most penny-pinching college president, this refurbishing might provide a double-whanny — cleanliness and beneficence — and better care of the dormitory room by the student.

Nitschke retires after 15 seasons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ray Nitschke's eyes were filled with tears. He had lost the battle with age—a more determined foe than any lineman he had faced in his 15-year National Football League career.

"There's no room on the Packer squad for three middle linebackers," he said, "so I'm retiring."

There was only one regret for the 36-year-old veteran, "...that I can't turn the clock back to 1958 and become a Packer all over again."

His voice wavered, his eyes grew more moist.

"The spirit's still there, but the numbers game got to me.

His expression was nothing new. The brash insistence of Time that aging stars leave the game they love has claimed untold numbers of veteran players.

"I've been prepared for this for the last month or so—even when camp started," Nitschke said. "But I wanted to be prepared to help out if I was needed ... if they called on me."

The call never came. Packer coaches had to concern themselves with Jim Carter, Nitschke's replacement since 1971. The fact that Nitschke had anchored Green Bay defenses through five championship seasons and two Super Bowl crowns just couldn't stop the clock.

There was another, less emotional, departure from pro football Tuesday—that of running back John Riggins from the New York Jets' camp. Riggins, who had been holding out for over $100,000 after gaining 944 yards and being voted the club's Most Valuable Player last season, returned to his Centralia, Kan. home after contract negotiations failed.

"I went for all the marbles," he said. "It was all or none. The way I see it now, I don't think I'll be back."

Meanwhile, things were returning to normal at other NFL camps after wholesale cuts Monday brought rosters down to the 49-man limit.

The Minnesota Vikings traded wide receiver Gene Washington to the Denver Broncos in exchange for wide receiver Rod Sherman and an undisclosed draft choice.

Washington, 28, is a seven-year veteran and a former first round draft choice. His career statistics include 172 receptions for 3,087 yards, but a foot injury has bothered him the last two seasons. A former hurdler at Michigan State, Washington's best year came in 1968 when he caught 46 passes for 756 yards.

Sherman, who has played with the Oakland Raiders, Cincinnati Bengals, then Oakland again before being acquired by Denver, has caught 104 passes for 1,558 yards.

Newly named head coach John North of New Orleans made it clear that he won't be transforming the Saints, 2-11-1 last year, into immediate winners.

"I think it's going to take a little time, but we will get it going," he said on his first day as head man.

TWO-FISTED CHRIS — Chris Evert holds racket with both hands returning a ball to Veronica Burton, of Great Britain, in their singles match of the Wightman Cup tournament at Brookline, Mass. Miss Evert won the match 6-3, 6-0, to lead the U.S. team to its fifth straight tennis championship.

Oliver's homer sets tempo for Bucs' win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You must be kidding. Al Oliver with an inferiority complex? But there it was.

Long known for his swaggering confidence, the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder admitted Tuesday night that he's a "hit-and-hope" hitter.

"I hit and hope for the best," said Oliver after hitting a home run to start the Pirates to an 8-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Oliver, who usually boasts that he's the "greatest" and exudes immodest self-assurance, was not so positive Tuesday night despite the big blow.

"I'm not a home run hitter," said Oliver. "I'm a hard-luck hitter. If I was paid for line drives, I'd be the first million dollar player in baseball.

"I was just glad the homer got us going."

The homer not only got the Pirates going, it kept them coming in the National League East race. They kept the pressure on front-running St. Louis and remained two games behind as the Cardinals beat the Houston Astros 8-3.

In the other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the San Francisco Giants 1-0; the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Montreal Expos 6-1; the New York Mets turned back the San Diego Padres 8-6, and the Chicago Cubs trimoed the Atlanta Braves 9-6.

Cardinals 8, Astros 3

Lou Brock's two-run single keyed a four-run St. Louis fourth inning and lifted the Cardinals to an 8-3 decision over Houston.

The Cards trailed 3-0 going into the inning after Houston's Bob Gallagher hit a two-run double and John Edwards a run-producing single in the second inning.

Phillies 1, Giants 0

Bill Robinson's seventh home run in the last 10 games backed Wayne Twitchell's four-hitter in Philadelphia's 1-0 success over San Francisco.

Dodgers 6, Expos 1.

Steve Garvey's home run keyed a two-run rally in the fourth inning that started Claude Osteen and Los Angeles to a 6-1 decision over Montreal. After Garvey's home run tied the game 1-1, the dodgers scored the tie-breaking run on singles by Willie Crawford, Bill Russell and Ron Cey.

Mets 8, Padres 6

Wayne Garrett's 10th homer of the year broke a sixth-inning tie and triggered a five-run rally that carried New York over San Diego 8-6. Winner Jon Matlack survived a two-run rally by San Diego in the first.

Cubs 9, Braves 6

Henry Aaron smashed his 706th career homer and knocked in four runs, but Chicago rallied for three runs in the eighth and two more in the ninth to beat Atlanta 9-6. Aaron's three-run shot in the first inning put him within eight homers of Babe Ruth's monumental record of 714. The Atlanta star has had 33 so far this season.

Pony coaches clinic slated

A clinic for coaches and other officials in the Washington C.H. Pony Football League will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Washington Senior High School band room.

Daryl Stewart, commissioner of the Pony Football League, said the clinic will be conducted by the Washington C.H. football coaching staff.

Head coach Maurice Pfeifer and his staff of assistants will discuss basic football rules in addition to their coaching philosophies.

NL ruling restores Tolan to Cincy's active roster

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Outfielder Bobby Tolan won reinstatement to the Cincinnati Reds from the disabled list, but he was no where to be found.

When he shows up again, Manager Sparky Anderson indicated he won't play. Rookie Ken Griffey, called up Friday from Indianapolis had two hits each in his first three games and stole one base in the Reds losing effort to Pittsburgh Tuesday 8-3.

"Griffey has earned the right," said Anderson. "He did it on his own. He has shown he can play—and run."

As for Tolan, all Anderson said was: "He's back on the club." Then he added, he'd use Tolan as he "sees fit."

National League President Chub Feeney and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ruled before gametime that Tolan could not be placed on the 15-day disabled list because he didn't meet the requirements.

The Reds announced Saturday that Tolan was placed on the list because of a back ailment. Griffey and Ted Armbrister were called up, one of them replacing Tolan and the other substituting for pitcher Roger Nelson.

The Reds, following the league ruling, sent Armbrister back.

Tolan, meanwhile, was fined $350 by the Reds who said he cursed player personnel director Sheldon Bender and failed to report twice for physical examinations.

Tolan filed a grievance with the Major League Professional Ballplayers Association in New York. He disputed the fines and charged the Reds were using the disability list to discipline him.

Monday, Tolan took a physical and team physician Dr. George Ballou pronounced him fit to play. The league ruling followed the next day.

The pronouncement made Tolan eligible to play Tuesday night but he was not at Riverfront Stadium nor at his home.

Fans met the announcement of Tolan's reinstatement and a statement by Reds General Manager during the game with a chorus of boos.

Howsam, who was on the West Coast, said in the statement that, "This allows the Reds to use Tolan effective tonight. This pleases us because he won't be lost to the club for 15 days. It naturally strengthens our club to have Tolan return with his back healthy. With Bobby back on the roster, he will have a chance to win a pennant."

Bengals practice shortened by heat

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals were scheduled to continue adding running and passing plays to their offense today in preparation for Saturday night's preseason NFL game with the Atlanta Falcons.

Coach Paul Brown cut practice short Tuesday because of the high humidity and 90-degree weather.

16 ready for Hambletonian

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — A field of 16 finely-tuned 3-year-old trotters was set today for the record $144,710 Hambletonian, the premier event in harness racing.

A heat wave that for three days has sent temperatures into the upper 90s was due to continue with no rain in sight.

Despite the sweltering, humid conditions, a crowd of more than 16,000 was expected and another 30,000 on the grounds of the gaily festooned Du Quoin State Fair.

It was sport for sport's sake in this rural American setting where parimutuel wagering is prohibited.

The horse winning two heats bags the $72,355 top prize as well as the prestige unmeasured in future money value.

The heats will be trotted on a clay mile oval. The second heat will follow the first by about one hour, and a third, if necessary, will be held another hour later.

Knightly Way, piloted by John Simpson Jr., was the unofficial favorite in quest of his ninth victory in 10 starts this season. He has not raced since suffering an injured shoulder in his stall at Springfield, Ill., two weeks ago.

Second choice was Arnie Almahurst, driven by Gene Riegle. Arnie, drawing the No. 1 post, progressed sensationally the last two weeks after breaking six times in nine previous starts.

Although a slow starter, he rallied and won the Review Futurity at Springfield and the Futurity at Indianapolis in straight heats.

Others in the field and their drivers were: Placate, Jimmy Arthur; Flirth, Ralph Baldwin; Fairmont Hanover, Del Miller; Florinda, Joe O'Brien; Honeysuckle Rose, Vernon Dancer; South Bend, Howard Boissinger; MacArthur, Mike Zeller; Chaco, Bruce Nickells; Keystone Lord, Billy Haughton; Noble Jade, Del Insko; Imperial Yankee, Billy Haughton; Lucky Hill, Max Lynch; Feticil, Herve Filion, and Keystone Wart, Cecil Champion.

Haughton is listed driver for both Keystone Lord and Imperial Yankee, and must make a choice with another driver to be named.

Rupp takes orders from female board

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Adolph Rupp says he doesn't think he'll have any trouble taking orders from the woman who heads the Kentucky Colonels board of directors.

"I think I can take it," the former University of Kentucky basketball coach said Tuesday after his appointment as vicechairman of the otherwise all-female board was announced at a news conference. "It's gonna be interesting to sit here and be the only man and take orders from a bunch of girls."

Joe Hawk returns with Legion contender

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Joe Hawk, the grand old man of amateur baseball, is back.

The 68-year-old builder of baseball champions has qualified Cincinnati's famed Bentley Post for a bid at an unprecedented sixth national title in the American Legion Little World Series at Lewiston, Idaho, this week.

Hawk, whose Bentley clubs have won 19 state titles in his three decades of coaching, is considered the nation's winningest legion baseball coach.

Catholics win tourney debut

The St. Colman's Knights of Columbus slo-pitch softball team opened the annual church league tournament in style Tuesday night by handing Good Shepherd Lutheran a 14-3 setback at Eyman Park.

Danny Mahoney sparked the 18-hit attack with two home runs, a triple in five trips while Chris Shaper added a double and a single. Phil Bihl and Dick Smith also had homers. Larry Johnson was the winning pitcher.

The Catholics will meet the winner of the First Baptist-Good Hope Methodist game at 7 p.m. Friday.

Big 10 teams hope to elbow powers from grid spotlight

CHICAGO (AP) — This may be the college football season when the Big Ten Conference finally elbows the Big Eight out of the national spotlight.

For the Big Ten, co-defending champions Ohio State and Michigan appear capable of dislodging the Big Eight's perennial standouts, Nebraska and Oklahoma, from their customary lofty role in the national rankings.

For many seasons, the Big Eight has outshone the Big Ten as the kingpin conference in the Midwest, but this is a campaign of Big Eight flux over-all and one of pennance for titleshorn Oklahoma.

With new coaches, and minus recent superstars, Nebraska and Oklahoma still rate highly in the Big Eight race. But no matter its ultimate success, Oklahoma is condemned to a wallflower role when the post-season bowl games are played.

The Big Eight recently punished Oklahoma for recruiting sins, banning the Sooners from post-season play for 1973 and 1974, and defaulting the Sooners' 1972 title to runner-up Nebraska.

However, the chastisement didn't erase the Nov. 23 national TV showing of the probable title battle between Oklahoma and Nebraska at Norman, Okla.

That is one day before the Nov. 24 Big Ten finale between Ohio State and Michigan which seems destined, as it has for five previous season windups between these rivals, to resolve the conference championship and the Rose Bowl assignment.

The Midwest's prime independent, Notre Dame, is considered capable of clawing back into the nation's top 10, although the scars may not be healed from the 40-6 Orange Bowl drubbing the Fighting Irish took from Nebraska.

In the Missouri Valley Conference, the title battle again appears to center among last season's tri-champs—West Texas State, Louisville and Drake, with West Texas State slightly favored and Tulsa an outside threat.

Mid-American Conference power is concentrated among defending champion Kent State, Bowling Green (Ohio), Miami (Ohio) and Ohio University, which also will be traveling against such fast outside company as Penn State, South Carolina and Northwestern.

The Mid-American membership has swelled to 10 with the addition of Northern Illinois and Ball State. But those two schools and Central Michigan and Eastern Michigan are not yet booked into the title race.

Foreign investors flock to U.S.

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Europeans who believe there is a future to the United States stock market are being presented with a rare, perhaps once-in-a-lifetime, opportunity.

The situation results from two dollar devaluations in less than two years that have effectively reduced the price of blue chip stocks as much as 40 per cent in terms of certain foreign currencies.

Thus a double possibility for profits exists: one, if the price of stocks move higher; two, if the dollar recovers its value in relation to other currencies.

Rinfret-Boston Associates, management and economic consultants to industry and government, compiled a list of discounts for stocks purchased in foreign currencies and concluded, "Ye God!"

Based on August 20 prices, when the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed at 867, the equivalent in German marks was 522, in French francs 746 and in Swiss francs 500.

"In many ways," it commented, "the extent of the dollar decline against the German mark, the French franc and the Swiss franc has been unappreciated." It went on to explain:

"Most people read in the newspapers that the tradeweighted dollar devaluation since December 1971 is about 9 per cent. That figure includes trade with the entire world, and since Canada is our most important trade partner, the figure is not representative of Europe.

"The reason is that the Canadian dollar is virtually at par with the American dollar."

Wise European investors appear to be aware of the advantage, at least based on their buying and selling practices.

Last year they bought far more stocks than they sold, especially in the fourth quarter of the year. The net capital inflow of $2.1 billion was the second highest figure in history.

Through the first five months of 1973, the dominance of purchases over sales was even higher than in the comparable period of 1972. The net purchase balance through May was $1.3 billion, compared with $700 million a year earlier.

Radial tires to blossom

DETROIT (AP) — Steel-belted, radial-ply tires will make their first large-scale appearance on the new American car lines this year.

Long dominant on European highways, the radials were virtually unknown to the average U.S. car buyer until just a few years ago. But a major effort by the top domestic auto and tire firms has made their widespread inclusion possible on 1974 model cars.

The radials have been widely touted as long-wearing, virtually puncture-proof and capable of providing a much smoother ride.

And the federal Environmental Protection Agency says they also will mean a gasoline savings of about 10 per cent.

The automakers are expecting Americans to jump at radial options and at models with radial tires as standard equipment when the 1974 cars go on sale next month.

Electrical device fences in dogs

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A device developed by a welding company executive here keeps dogs within a particular area by giving them mild electric shocks when they approach the perimeter.

Richard M. Peck, owner of R&M Industries here, says he was granted a patent last week for the device, called Sta-Put.

It consists of a collar with batteries and electrodes that apply current to a dog's neck when the animal comes near a buried wire.

The collar would allow watchdogs to roam at night without being chained.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

A top-notch declarer takes every possibility tinto consideration. Delicate refinements of play do occasionally arise, and the mark of a fine declarer is that he manages to apply them effectively to the task at hand.

West led a club, won by the ace, and declarer finessed the queen of spades, on which West played the nine. When declarer continued with the jack, East covered with the king, South winning with the ace as West showed out.

South still had the 10-7-3 over East's 8-6 and, in order to avoid a trump loser, he returned to dummy with a low diamond to the jack in order to lead the four of trumps. When East covered with the six, South finessed the seven and drew East's last trump with the ten.

Declarer would now have been on Easy Street had he found the diamonds divided 3-2, but when he led the ace East showed out and West's remaining 10-7 prevented him from running the suit.

South was therefore obliged to overtake the queen with the king in order to lead a heart from dummy. However, West showed up with the A-Q and South went down one.

But he should have made the hand. After the trump situation became exposed, he should have realized he was subject to a 4-1 diamond break and taken steps to guard against that possibility.

Instead of leading the six of diamonds to the jack, he should have led the queen to the king. Then, after drawing trumps, he could play the ace and another diamond, taking the proven finesse and finishing with eleven tricks instead of nine.

The queen is played to the king not to display an abundance of resources, nor for histrionic effect, but to cover the specific possibility of West's having four diamonds to the ten.

Pot Smokers Are Shameless

Did you see the pictures of the students at a college flaunt their marijuana smoking in the faces of authorities?

Can you imagine that such indecent behavior would be tolerated?

Mr. K.R.B., Iowa

Dear Mr. B.:

Yes, I did see that aggressive display of rebellion and the flagrant violation of the existing laws.

Fortunately the legislative and health authorities in Michigan wisely repealed and revoked the given or implied permission to legally indulge in marijuana smoking. The nation salutes them.

The horrendous portrait of a group of teenagers and young adults playing the role of pseudosophisticated, liberated moderns highlighted the need for education about marijuana.

It emphasized the massive dangers implicit in the drive to have marijuana legalized. Unbridled freedom given to those who are totally ignorant of the hazards of this drug exposes them to limitless physical and emotional danger.

How many of those pictured smoking at a football game really cared about the game, the college spirit or the wholesome attitudes associated with it?

I deliberately ask that question to encourage the obvious and specious argument raised about adults drinking alcohol at their college reunions.

There is no logical relationship between the two. If youngsters really and sincerely have a sense of social consciousness, their job is to discourage all overindulgence in alcohol. Instead youngsters take it as an added right for them to compound an error and embark on a treacherous pathway to even more dangerous drug involvement.

Neither of these drugs, alcohol or marijuana, can eventually add to their collegiate and post-college accomplishments.

When I speak of the hazards of marijuana, I refer only indirectly to the danger of graduating from this drug to harder drugs and eventually being trapped by the ghostliness of drug addication.

As a doctor, I have been exposed to the question that many high school and college students regularly ask: "Do you mean to tell me that all people who smoke marijuana eventually become drug addicts?"

The answer is "no" and the trap of that question is obvious. However, let me emphasize, reemphasize, and imprint into the consciousness of everyone that in a large penal institution devoted to hard drug addicts, more than 95 per cent of all those incarcerated began their journey to destruction with "playful pot smoking."

Another argument borne of an effort to get adults to condone "grass" smoking is: "It is no more dangerous than cigarettes."

Wrong again! Cigarette smoking is undoubtedly a massive threat to health. Medical studies have supported this without any question. How many marijuana smokers are aware of the scientific proof that is accumulating about neurotic behavior, genetic disturbances, accidents and deaths due to impaired reflexes, inability to reason, and actual physical damage to brain cells? In the light of this undeniable evidence, what more unrealistic arguments will be foolishly created?

Licking-Knox flood meet to be held

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Newark city officials planned to talk with representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and state officials later this week to clear up confusion over a major flood protection project on the Licking-Knox county line.

The project, in the planning stages for several months, involves dredging and deepening the channel of the Licking River and creating a diversionary ditch for one of its tributaries.

The Ohio Natural Resources Department sent a letter to the engineers saying that the department would have to consider the projects separately before funding could be approved.

The corps said the letter meant the state was dropping its support of the project.

Newark Mayor Richard Baker received a copy of a letter Monday sent from the Army engineers to the resources department expressing concern over the state withdrawing its support of the project.

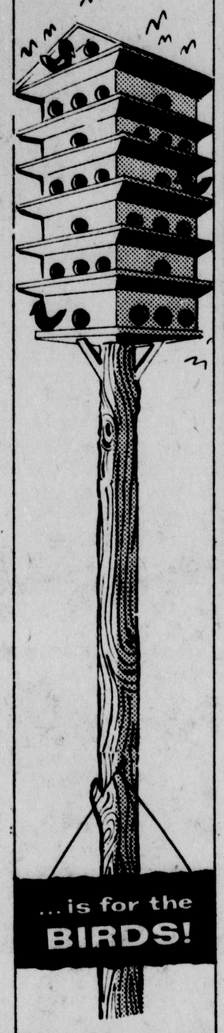

The three sides are to get together by telephone this week to discuss the matter. Original plans call for the project to begin in 1975.

Physician plans appeal of order

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The attorney for a Mansfield physician suspended from practice Aug. 15 said Monday that he'll go to court to appeal the decision of the Ohio State Medical Board.

The board issued the judgment against Dr. Gordon F. Morkel after a Mansfield man charged that he was billed for services which the physician did not perform.

Hostages freed, gunmen yield

STOCKHOLM (AP) — "Don't hurt them—they didn't harm us," two women hostages cried as police Tuesday night seized the pair of gunmen who had held four people for 132 hours in a Stockholm bank.

"We never felt the boys were a threat to our lives," 21-year-old Kristin Enmark told a newsman. "We were scared that the police would do something that would force them to turn desperate."

The two convicts—safecracker Jan-Erik Olsson, 32, and life-term murderer Clark Olofsson, 26—surrendered after police pumped tear gas into the bank vault in which they were holding three women and a man prisoner.

There was no bloodshed, and doctors at the hospital to which the hostages were taken said their condition was "good under the circumstances."

Miss Enmark denied reports that one of the other two women had been raped repeatedly.

"None of them did anything to us," she told newsmen who interviewed her in Sabbatsberg Hospital.

Olsson seized the four bank employes last Thursday when police surprised him as he was robbing the main office of the Kreditbanken.

An escaped convict, he demanded that Olofsson be brought to the bank and that they be given $650,000 in ransom and safe conduct out of the country. The government agreed but would not let them go when Olsson insisted on taking two of the hostages with him for insurance.

The convicts had the run of the bank for two days, but police trapped them and their captives Saturday in the 40-by-19-foot vault.

Early Tuesday evening, the police suddenly cut off the lights in the vault and pumped tear gas through holes they had drilled. Olsson fired a burst from his submachine gun and then gave up.

"Shortly after the gas was pumped into the vault, I heard cries from the girls and the door was opened," Detective Inspector Karl Gunnar Aastroem said. He said Olofsson shouted, "We surrender."

"He seemed to be fit," Aastroem continued. "I put the handcuffs around his wrists and took him away. Olsson did not put up any resistance either. Both appeared to be suffering from the gas."

"I couldn't imagine that it would work so so smoothly," said Police Supt. Sven Thomander. "I got damned scared when I noticed we had pumped in too small an amount of gas. We closed the door again and pumped in more gas."

There were two casualties in the six-day siege, a policeman shot in the hand during Olsson's robbery attempt on Thursday and another policeman hit in the hand and the jaw when Olsson fired through one of the holes in the ceiling of the vault on Tuesday.

City Council schedules special session

A special meeting of Washington City Council has been called for 7 p.m. today by Billie Wilson, chairman. Tonight's session will take the place of the regular meeting scheduled for Sept. 12 which has been canceled.

Six ordinances are on the agenda for the meeting tonight, including three for the renewal of notes, and two ordinances which received tentative approval on the first reading last week.

Another ordinance to be presented is for the approval of a "Best Efforts" agreement with Cor Tec, Inc., of Auburn, Wash. The company plans to establish a factory in Washington C.H.

The note renewal ordinances pertain to a street resurfacing project, and the construction of the North Street bridge.

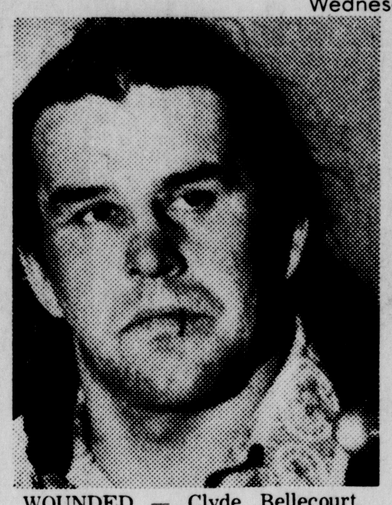

Ordinances to be presented on the second reading authorize the city manager to enter a contract with Mai Kai Hot-Mix, Inc., to resurface city streets, and designate public depositories.

City Manager Dan Wolford plans to ask Council for authorization to purchase and place a traffic signal at the intersection of Cedar and Elm streets.

Police check bat bite, burglary

While on a routine check of buildings Tuesday night a city patrolman found that a vending machine at the Certified service station, Dayton Avenue, had been pried open. The owner was contacted and he said that the money was removed each evening. All that was missing was four cans of soft drink.

Carol Patrick, of Praire Road, reported to police that she may have been bitten by a bat. After receiving what felt like an insect sting, Miss Patrick, saw a bat in the room. The bat was killed and taken for examaination to determine whether or not it had rabies. No marks were visible.

WOUNDED — Clyde Bellecourt, above, a leader in the American Indian Movement, was shot and critically wounded on the Rosebud Indian Reservation in South Dakota. Authorities said Bellecourt, 36, was shot in the yard of a home north of Rosebud. Carter Camp, president of the American Indian Movement, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting after he surrendered.

Light damage is listed in 3 mishaps

Three minor traffic accidents were reported to the police and sheriff's departments.

William A. Lankford, 25, of 419 East St., was charged with reckless operation by the sheriff's department when he failed to negotiate a curve on U.S. 62 shortly after midnight. There was little damage to the pole or vehicle.

Lizzie B. Angel, 57, of Greenfield, was backing out of a parking space on S. Main Street when she bumped the vehicle parked in the adjacent space. The other car is owned by Larry Walker, 445 Broadway.

George K. Magg, 18, of 407 Fifth St., was turning into a driveway on S. Elm Street when his vehicle was struck by a car driven by Brian K. Haines, 1030 S. Hinde St., which had been immediately behind it. Haines, who was alone and had only a temporary permit to drive, was cited by the police for driving without a license.
